LIONS CLUB ANNOUNCES WINNERS IN CITY WIDE YARD AND GARDEN CONTEST

Although prizes will not be ready for distribution for a week or ten days, the Sikeston Lions Club Thursday announced winners in the city-wide beautification contest sponsored by the Club. Entrants were divided into four classes.

In Class No. 1, in which entrants themselves worked, the winners are:

First, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Rudy. $15; second, Mrs. Alice Edmondson. $7.50; third, Mrs. Harvey Morrison, $5; fourth, Mrs. Wm. Carson, floor lamp; fifth, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Scott, basket groceries.

Class No. 2, entrant employing common labor only:

First, Mrs. Mollie Mrshall, evergreen shrub; 2nd, Mrs. C. Greer, evergreen shrub; 3rd, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dover. evergreen shrub; 4th, Mrs. W. C. Bowman, evergreen shrub.

Class No. 3, entrant employing expert gardners, etc.:

First, E. C. Matthews; 2nd, C. D. Matthews; 3rd, Dr. T. C. McClure; 4th, Jos. L. Matthews. Each of these will receive a certificate of merit.

Class No. 4, members of the Lions Club:

First, H. C. Blanton; 2nd, C. E. Brenton; 3rd, Alvin Taylor; 4th, C C. White. Each of these winners will recieve a certificate of merit.

The committee on awards had to consider many things in determining winners in each class. The severe drouth ruined many fine lawns, killed shrubs, and stunted beds of flowers. The committee had to consider whether or not the entrant had a water supply available to artificially keep alive his plantings which otherwise would have died. The awards were made on the basis of points, and in a few cases only, a few find distinctions kept entrants out of the money, and placed them in third or fourth places.

Club members are gratified with the results, and hope that next spring will find an awakened interest in the work of beautifying the home. Several dozen prospective entrants refused to sign cards at the beginning of the contest, and these could not be considered in making awards. Those, it is hoped. will have overcome their natural shyness and still sign up when the proper time comes next spring.

$10,000 DAMAGE SUIT FILED AGAIST BOYCE CO. IN DEATH OF NEGRO

Mound City, Ill., October 16.—After waiving a preliminary examination, Harry D. Cooley, of Sikeston, Mo., alleged to have been driving the truck that struck and fatally injured Rodney England, colored, of Mounds. on the hard road near the National cemetery some time ago, was held over to the action of the grand jury in the October term of circuit court and his bond was set at $5000. Cooley had not been able to fill bond this morning, but is expected to do so late today or tomorrow.

A lawsuit which grew out of the accident was revealed here today with the announcement that young England's father, Rhome England of Mounds had filed a suit for $10,000 damages against Charles Boyce, of Sikeston. Boyce is the owner of the truck which is alleged to have knocked England from the running board of his parked machine and is a dealer in International trucks. It was an international truck that Cooley was driving on the night of the accident. The damage suit was filed under the 'death by wrongful act" provision of the Illinois State laws Boyce is covered by an indemnity policy and may be defended by the insurance company.

The inquest into England's death was held late Wednesday in the undertaking parlors of E. A. Burke Coroner Dan Sullivan was in charge A verdict was returned to the effect that England came to his death by the right side of his head being crushed by a blunt instrument, his body being found on Route 2, two miles southeast of Mounds on the night of October 7.

The verdict made no suggestion indicating that the blunt instrument may have been the truck driven by Cooley.

SIKESTON LOSES A BUSINESS VETERAN

George R. Harper died unexpectedly Tuesday evening at his home on School and Kendall Streets, following a chronic heart attack and the roll of Sikeston business men lost one of its most congenial and best liked members. Customers of the H. & H. Grocery and fellow business men alike, dropped in frequently for a friendly chat, and seldom did anyone find 'Old Man" Harper without a smile, a cheerful word—and the stub of a cigar. He was one of Front Street's front rank members.

For a number of days preceeding Tuesday, Mr. Harper complained of peculiar darting pains in his chest and arms. He was advised frequently to consult a physician, but the matter was deferred until Tuesday noon. Then he decided to remain at home to recuperate from his "cold" and the peculiar feeling in his chest.

Shortly after six o'clock Mrs. Harper inquired whether he felt like eating a light supper. He decided he would and attempted to get up. Before a doctor could reach his bedside he had breathed his last.

He was born September 5, 1864 in Stoddard County near Dexter, and spent the early days of his life in that community. In 1917, the family moved to Noxall, where Mr. Harper and his oldest son, Sy Harper, operated a mercantlie business.

Two years later, the business was sold out and the Harpers moved to Sikeston and maintained a similar store in the Beck Building on Front Street. Some eleven years ago, W. E. Hollingsworth sold his interest in a grocery concern across the street from the Harper store, and since that time the business was known as the H. & H. Grocery, Hollingsworth and Harper. A half interest was later purchased by Bob Mow, who has been associated with Mr. Harper for the past eight years.

Funeral services will be conducted sat the first Christian church here, Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Mr. Harper was an ardent Christian, and served on the official board for a number of years. Rev. A. A. Hedges of Dexter will officiate. Interment will be made in an old family burial ground 10 miles north of Dexter known as the Harper Cemetery.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Harriet Harper. Only a day beore her husband's death, the couple had celebrated their forty-first wedding anniversary. Six children, all of who will be present for the services, also survive. They are: H. S. 'Sy" Harper of Jerome, Idaho, Ralph of Green River, Wyoming, who with his wife is expected to arrive here Friday; Max Harper of Nampa, Idaho, Mrs. W. A. Singleton of Chaffee, Mrs. Alfred Bloomfield of Edinburg, Texas and Mrs. Shirley Bloomfield of this city. Five grandchildren and the only near relative of Mr. Harper Mrs. Lelia Stewart, of Dexter, wil also attend.

RED CROSS DRIVE GETS UNDER WAY IN COUNTY, SIKESTON RESPONSE HEALTHY

The 1930 Red Cross Roll Call drive was about half completed Thursday, according to C. E. Brenton, county chairman.

While an indefinite goal had been set this year, Chairman Brenton was well pleased with the response accorded workers in this city. Those out of employment were unable to donate, but in many cases expressed their willingness to do so "when work picked up". Those who are employed subscribed nearly 100 per cent, as evidenced by the fact that nearly every store and office including, the State Highway Department and the Milling Company offices went over the top with the big 100 per cent banner. So hearty was the response in this filed that the workers have disposed of all such banners and need more.

Members of the Russell-Bradley Missionary Society, the American Legion Auxiliary and members of the Lions Club and business men made up 25 2-man teams starting their work early Tuesday morning Members of Auxiliary were to start their drive this afternoon.

While there is a decline in memberships in some instances, the average size of donations is considerably larger. Mr. Brenton sees in this an awareness on the part of the general public, and especially those who are able to give, of actual conditions. Only a few business houses gave less than $5.00 and some, as well as individuals about town, gave as much as $25.

Blodgett workers were scheduled to take up the task in that city Friday. Illmo-Fornfelt and Ancell have set next week to start the drive there. Morley and Benton are completing their roll call drives, while Chaffee started work there Wednesday.

As in previous years the teaching staff in the high and grammar schools subscribed 100 per cent, and both institutions are displaying the big Red Cross banner.

Mr. Brenton explained the reason for not setting a concrete goal this year in terms of relief. "No matter how much we raise locally or in the district", said the Chairman, "the amount will still fall short of our requirements." Preliminary estimates, it will be remembered, placed the number of destitute cases in Scott County alone, at 300 families.

Although the National Chapter is not seemingly aware of the situation in drouth areas, the local office has on file two cases of death from undernourishment and actual starvation. The family was too proud to ask for assistance.

SIKESTON AND CAPAHAS IN FINAL TILT OF FIVE-GAME SERIES SUNDAY

Managers Bill Sulivan and Tom Malone agreed Thursday morning to bring the Cape Girardeau Capahas and the Sikeston club together for a final clash next Sunday at Fairgrounds park. Rumors prevailed earlier in the week to the effect that the Cape Girardeau team would be disbanded for the season, but the managers decided not to allow a two and two deadlock to carry over until next season.

The playoff will find at least four players from outside leagues and associations on the diamond. Benny Tate, first string receiver for the Chicago White Sox, has been asked to receive Lefty Fuhr's offerings Lefty, himself, spent the past two summers with New Orleans.

Wid Matthews, outfielder with Little Rock this past summer, and veteran of the 1924 world's series playing with Washington, will hold down the centerfield area for the locals. The Capahas will have Si Lingle, Des Moines, Iowa, catcher, receiving for Elam Van Gilder, a Toledo Mud Hen twirler, who has twice balked the local club.

Both teams battled royally last Sunday in a 13-inning contest, which was finally decided in favor of the Capahas, when Nenninger drove Sariff across with the winning run as dusk settled across the playing field in Cape Girardeau.

WILL CONSIDER CHARITY FUND FOR HOSPITAL HERE

The one Sikeston institution knowr to residents in Southeast Missouri from Poplar Bluff to Cairo, and from Caruthersville to Cape Girardeau, the Emergency Hospital, will be the center of discussion at a special called mass meeting of business and professional men, civic leaders, church groups, and heads of semi charitable and school officials nex Tuesday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock The meeting will be called to order at that time in the New Armory Hall.

In October, 1927, a newcomer to the professional ranks in Sikeston, Dr. H. M. Kendig. realized his dream in part at least of starting an Emergency Hospital. Associated with him at that time and to this day was one of the veterans, Dr. G. W. Presnell. The start was small, and the hospital confined itself to two rooms in the Sexton building.

In December two women settled a difference of opinion in fistic combat and both participants in the fray were brought to the new hospital rooms for treatment. That seemed to be the turning point, and since that time, the institution has rented every available room on the second floor of the building. Ten beds are available, and in some cases additional accommodations are provided on cots.

Hundreds of persons in the district have received treatment for various ailments. Difficult operations have been performed, for the purchase of additional equipment early became necessary until now the operating room is equipped with the latest in surgical lines.

The Emergency Hospital gathered for itself a name now recognized in the territory it serves. It has saved lives and has relieved suffering, but it has not been a success financially. Many of its inmates have been outright charity cases, and others were able to pay only a fractional part of their board, lodging, nursing and physicians' bill. It is to assist in defraying the constantly mounting overhead expense and possibly providing for a charity ward, that the Tuesday meeting is called.

COUNCIL APPROVES LIGHT PLANT PLANS

Plans and specifications for Sikeston's proposed Municipal Light Plant were read and with a few minor exceptions, approved last Monday night by the City Council.

A few small changes were deemed necessary and Engineer W. A Fuller of St. Louis was ordered to make the necessary corrections, and notify the Council as soon as the work was completed. The specifications will next be published for the convenience of bidders on the work, and a notice to contractors calling attention to the proposed letting of the contract, published in trade magazines and newspapers.

BEN HUR LODGE TO MEET

Members of the Sikeston Chapter of Ben Hur will meet next Monday night, October 20 at 8 o'clock in the I. O. O. F. Hall. A. L. Solomon, supervisor, will be present. Business matters affecting the order will be transacted.

We think we saw the beginnings of a miserable night for a certain Sikeston gentleman who happened to remark to his wife, "Look Hon, your stockings are wrinkled". The look he received, together with the fact that the wife wore no stockings at that particular time, just leads us to the conclusion mentioned above.

Without knowledge or consent of the physicians who are operating the Emergency Hospital, several business men and citizens decided to call a mass meeting at the Armory for 2:00 o'clock Tuesday afternoon next, to suggest and provide ways and means to help in the deficit attending the operation of this very necessary institution. This is not to provide funds for these physicians, but is to help pay the nurses, the laundry, the food, the light, and other necessary expenses. An Emergency Hospital is just that. In emergency cases all are taken in and cared for without questioning their abliity to pay, for the sick and maimed must be given immediate attention in order to save life. The private practice of these physicians is the same as other physicians in the city, all of whom do their share of charity work, but the operating expenses of the hospital, in addition to the charity of Drs. Kendig and Presnell, should be looked after by big-hearted and Christian people alike, and not be a constant drain on the private purses of these gentlemen. The Standard editor personally knows a lot about the inside workings of the Emergency Hospital and the wonderful work they are doing.

We are told that some of our Republican candidates for office in Scott County are getting rather personal in some of their allusions and may be called on to prove same. If there is a Scott County officer that is dishonest, he should be kicked out, but we have never heard of anything of the sort until these Republican candidates begun to spout.

FULBRIGHT FOR CONGRESS THE MAN FOR THE PEOPLE

Permit us to suggest to the people of Pemiscot County and elsewhere that if they want a representative in Congress this term who will really represent the people of this district, they should select Jim Fulbright to the post. Fulbright was born and reared in this part of Missouri (he is a native of Cape Girardeau county) and he knows and understands the needs and desires of his people. For the past two years we have had in Washington a man of much culture, a man who even went to Europe to finish out his education. He is a public speaker, a preacher, a teacher, a man of fine mental qualification for almost any task. We would not for a moment detract from Dewey Short's natural and acquired endowments—he has plenty of brains and can make a most excellent impression wherever he goes. But in pursuing his higher education and in mixing and mingling with the aristocracy here, there and everywhere, Dewey has rather lost touch with the common, ordinary, every-day sort of people and he gave evidence of this fact in the way he voted while in Congress. Every time there was an opportunity to cast a vote which would benefit the people and organizations of great wealth Mr. Short could be depended upon to cast his that way, and he did. He was for every clause in the high-powered Fawley-Smoot-Grundy high tariff bill—he never once thought that he would be piling up living costs upon the poor man or if he did think of it he regarded it very lightly. He wanted the sugar barons, the lumber kings, the big hide and shoe men, the cement makers, all the big boys, to have the opportunity to get theirs, whatever the cost might be to the boys back home, at the forks of the creek or along the ditch bank. He was hand in glove with the administration all the way through, the old guard, the die-hards. He was by no manner of means among the sons of wild jackasses whom Senator Moses spoke of so feelingly, who have been tendering their best efforts toward a square deal for the farmer and the wage earner in recent years. But Mr. Short probably cannot help being that way. His nature and training are in that direction and it is not natural to expect him to feel an interest in the large mass of people who find life a difficult problem at best—and this class composes 90 per cent of the citizens he has ostensibly been representing. It is different with Mr. Fulbright. He had his origin among the lowly and he has never strayed from his original viewpoint. He can see the difference in legislation which will benefit them and that which will benefit the wealth—make them still richer and the poor still poorer—and you may rest assured that his heart and his conscience will direct his vote in your behalf. He makes no pretentions to great erudition. He was educated in the schools of his district and State, going as far as his means would permit, and he knows enough to make a good legislator, stopping just short of knowing too much. People of moderate means and moderate stations in life should have no difficulty in choosing between the two, though of course it would be easy to guess who would be the choice of millionaires.—Caruthersville Democrat.

It is our opinion that the fellow out of work would do well to take any kind of work offered him, and he should not be too independent and expect to set the price of his labor. It's going to be hard sledding for many and he that can honestly get enough to hold body and soul together will be fortunate to some degree. We have heard it stated that "that much a day won't keep me and my family," when without labor and a wage he is managing to live somehow. There is but one way and that is to manage. Good substantial staples such as bacon, white or other beans, sweet and white potatoes, and cornbread are the cheaper foods and do more to strengthen than any other kind. Cheap food is preferable to hunger. There's not an item on this bill of fare that we don't like, and eat. Many are going to have to trim their sails to suit the cold winds of winter—Charleston Courier.

WHEN CHILDREN SUFFER

Tillie Witt - County Nurse, says: "There are many distressing conditions in Scott county that are not known to the public.

"School examinations reveal many of these. Many children are out of school on account of lack of clothes and food.

"In a certain rural school in this county there were five children from one family who were pale and wan and poorly clad. Upon investigation and questioning it was found that these children had been living on potatoes for more than three weeks. All the clothes that they owned were the ragged ones that they were wearing. Without more food and clothes these children will suffer great hardships this winter. These children were all failing in their school work.

"Children cannot have good health or be expected to do good school work under such conditions.

We suppose it won't be long until the Republican bosses will telegraph the Government authorities at St. Louis to send U. S. officials into Pemscot County to aid in intimidating the colored people to vote the Republican ticket. They have done this in the last few elections under the guise and pretense of preventing the Democrats from intimidating the colored voters, when in fact the Republicans are the only intimidators. We are informed that the Republican bosses are now telling the negroes that if they do not come out and vote the Republican ticket they will run them out of the county, or prosecute them for not voting, etc. Any negro with sense enough to find the way home knows no one need vote if he does not choose to, and that if he does desire to vote, he can do so as he pleases. The Democrats are not attempting to intimidate anyone. It is the Republicans who are trying to bluff.—Caruthersville Democrat.

The Standard editor has long been an admirer of Gov. Caulfield, believing him to be a citizen of moral courage and an honest man. Since his elevation to the Governorship of Missouri we have found no fault to criticise, and his action in suspending, or removing, State Treasurer Brunk for questionable business transactions in handling the State's money, has proved to us his fitness for Governor, though we did not vote for him.

"Security" in connection with farm loans to be made to farmers in the drouth relief program has prevented many from making application, who really needed financial assistance. That word proved the bugaboo, but none could expect to receive loans without giving security for there would be as many, or more, who would obtain loans, without security, as there would be from those who really need funds to carry on and who could not give security. That is the reason for so few applications and also the reason why security is a provision. It behooves every able bodied man to take up another hole in his belt and go after whatever may be available in the shape of work. Now is no time to refuse any kind of honest labor. To keep the wolf from the door is the object.—Charleston Courier.

SOUTHEAST MAYORS DISCUSS SURVEY TAXATION PLAN

By Fred Naeter

The monthly meeting of Southeast Missouri Mayors was held Thursday night with Ira M. Morris, Mayor of Malden and president of the organization, presiding. The meeting was devoted to a general discussion of the State Survey program and after going into it fully it was resolved to adopt a resolution at the next meeting to put all the force possible back of it so the next legislature will aodpt it as practically as it is written.

Hon. Langdon R. Jones, lawyer at Kennett, a member of the legislature and a member of the Survey Commission, explained in particular the educational provisions of the report. Because of changed conditions he said the rich school districts have for years been getting the main state report while the poor districts have been getting the least support. St. Louis and Kansas City, with a small school tax levy, have been getting about one-third of all the state aid. There are 30 school districts in the state that levy only a 5-cent tax every other year because of their great riches while hundreds of other districts are collecting a school tax of more than $2 and get less state support.

The survey plan is to have all districts levy a school tax of 20 cents and then the state will provide the balance needed to give every school an 8-months term costing $900 per room. In hundreds of districts this provision will give better schools and at the same time will relieve an overburdened people of an unjust taxation.

About the only opposition to this plan, Mr. Jones said, comes from large centers where it is claimed that every school district should collect the maximum school tax before it gets maximum state aid. That is the law now, only it is not necessary for the rich districts to collect the maximum. The 20-cent levy is recommended because it will affect most all schools in the state and under the plan for an income tax the state can well afford to give such relief. No taxpayer now paying his share of taxes will have to pay any more, but those taxpayers who have not been paying their share will have to do so. The plan is for the state during a 10-year period to build up a better system of public schools and take over at least 80 per cent of the cost.

Dr. Loeb, the famous economist in St. Louis, who has been employed to find fault with the survey program by the Associated Industries of Missouri virtually approved the program when he made his first attack, Mr. Jones said. Mr. Loeb said there were no reliable data to show that tangible property now represents only 20 per cent of the wealth of the State but pays 96 per cent of the taxes, as stated by Chairman Gary, of the State Survey Commission. At the same time he said that when he was a member of the State Tax Commission in 1906 he found that intangible property was escaping taxation to such a great degree that he proposed legislation to bring it within reach of the tax assessor. "Thus Dr. Loeb agreed that even as far back as 1906 intangbile property, such as money, stocks, bonds, notes, etc., was largely escaping taxation and everybody knows that since 1906 the value of tangible property, as money, stocks, bonds, notes, etc., have greatly depreciated in value. So Dr. Loeb in trying to offset the statement of Mr. Gary goes stronger than Mr. Gary did in showing that wealth escapes taxation while the burden on property grows greater year after year, Mr. Jones explained.

Metropolitan newspapers persist in saying that great additional tax revenue is called for in the survey program, Mr. Jones said. They either misrepresent the facts intentionally or through ignorance. Of the entire 10-year program, estimated to cost about $196,000,000, the public schools get $100,000,000. But this does not mean new or additional help. It means that this money will be shifted largely from tangible property to intangible property. The money will be spent whether the survey program is adopted or not, but land will have to pay it instead of wealth. The $40,000,000 recommended for eleemosynary expense will have to be paid under any circumstance. If the survey program is adopted the State will pay it out of revenue collected from wealth. If it is not adopted the counties will have to pay it from taxation on property.

Only $40,000,000 of added revenue are asked for under the survey program, about $4,000,000 a year for new buildings and improvements at State institutions. This added money would come through the income tax on wealth and would not touch taxation on property.

Under the survey program the State will collect from wealth and spend on public school nearly $9,000,000 more than it now spends, bringing the total State aid up to about $12,000,000. This will take about $9,000,000 of taxation off of property, Mr. Jones explained. St. Louis, Kansas City, and every other school district in the State will immediately feel the beneficial effect of shifting the tax burden.

Fred Naeter, a member of the Survey Commission, called attention particularly to the taxation features of the survey program. The plan is to shift in a measure taxation from property to wealth. In 1928 the Federal government collected over 52 millions in Missouri through the income tax while the State collected less than four millions through its income tax. This tremendous sum came from wealth and not a dollar from property and no one complained. The plan is to have the State income tax law made effective as is the Federal law. Then the State will collect about one-third the amount collected by the Federal government, which will be from 16 to 18 millions. This taxation will be levied entirely on money income. No one who does not have an adequate money income will have to pay this tax. The poor will not be touched but the rich will have to pay moderately. Through this method, which is used so successfully by the Federal government, Missouri will shift its terribly depressing tax burden from property to wealth, and in this process the owners of wealth will hardly notice it while the owners of property thruout the State, in the cities as well as in the country, will immediately be relieved to a large extent. At the end of the 10-year program wealth will be carrying 80 per cent of the tax load and property will be carrying 20 per cent, which will be in proportion to its actual value.—Cape Missourian.

The Pemscot County farmer who had a good acreage in alfalfa this year certainly hit it lucky. The season was one of the finest for harvesting, being so little rain to interfere, and the yield has been good. Five to six cuttings are being had and the price is much better than usual, probably $20 to $24 a ton instead of the usual $12 to $15. This is qiute a contrast with the 3 to 3 1-2 cent cotton, with a yield of a bale and a half to the acre. Taken one year with another alfalfa at $10 a ton will beat the average cotton in cash returns and it has a great deal less of the worries attendant upon cotton raising. It leaves the land in much better condition, too, and to our way of thinking beats the cotton game forty ways for Sunday, or word to that effect.—Caruthersville Democrat.

GALLOWAY'S CUSTOMER SMOKES $10 CIGAR

"What this country needs most is a good five-cent cigar"—Vice-President Thomas R. Marshall.

Tastes seem to have changed since the Wilson administration. At least so thinks Paul Galloway, owner of a Sikeston drug store, and now victim of a dapper young fellow who smokes $10 cigars.

The dapper one walked into the drug store Sunday afternoon and approached the cigar counter with:

"Gimme a ficent ceegar". He tossed a slighlty wrinkled ten dollar bill on the counter.

"What else " asked Lewis Walker, clerk, as he rung up a 5c sale and extracted $9.95 in change.

"Nothin' ", said the brown suited, dark complected young man, checking his change as he walked out. "Nothin' else".

Tuesday afternoon, Lacy Allard bank clerk, made a discovery. Jeffersons' likeness adorned the face of one $10-bank note tendered for deposit by Galloway, and that of Hamilton graced another. Hamilton ordinarily and legally dominates the genuine ten spots.

Closer inspection of the bogus "Jeffersonian" bill gave evidence of much painstaking work. Exactly twenty figures "two" had been raised to read $10. The large letters "WO" in two had been erased and the letters "EN" substituted.

The dapper one could not be reached for an interview on the quality of his ten dollar smoke.

NEGRO BUYS 380-ACRE FARM NEAR MARSTON

The sale of a 380-acre of rich black farm land to Ed Vance, negro was recorded this past week. Vance saved his money sharecropping south of Sikeston, and purchased the farm outright.

Vance says he will plant about 100 acres in grain this fall, reserving slightly less than 100 acres for cotton next spring. He has already planted rye for spring hog pasture and intends to plant corn, soybeans and peas on part of the land. Cattle, hogs, and chickens will supplement his anticipated income from cotton, but Vance is not sold on planting the entire farm in the latter corp. "A man'll go broke dat way, suh", he stopped long enough to comment Monday morning.

This farmer recently found two stray hound dogs on his place, and has complied with the law in advertising the fact. The owners may still have the animals by paying publication fees, and the three-month board bill.

The dogs are being asked nowadays to help pay for their "keep" by tracing occasional bobcats, which Vance says abound on the 380-acre tract, and by treeing big red fox squirrels. The negro farmer will cut cord wood, stave timber and sawmill lumber from part of the recently acquired tract, to help ou until next crop season.

GREEN STORE ROOM TO BE OCCUPIED

The storeroom formerly occupied by the Green Department Store on Front and New Madrid Streets will house the Powell Insurance Agency and Harry Lampert's Store after this week.

Office equipment of the Powell Agency was moved into its new home late Wednesday evening. The office fronts on New Madrid Street and is separated from the Lampert store by a partition. It was formerly located upstairs in the same building.

The Lampert Store, now located in the Hobbs Building on North New Madrid Street, will be moved to its new location on Front Street as soon as decorators can finish with the interior of the new location.

NEW SLAB ON 61 READY FOR TRAFFIC

Jackson, October 15.—The new stretch of pavement on Highway 61 between Cape Girardeau and three miles west of this city will be opened to traffic Saturday. This will be the final link of pavement connecting St. Louis and Cape Girardeau, as the 20-mile stretch between Farmington and Fredericktown was opened shortly after Easter.

The only unpaved stretch now existing between St. Louis and Memphis, Tenn., after Saturday will be that between Sikeston and four miles south of Cape Girardeau, a distance of 30 miles. This section is under construction at the present time and is to be paved and open to traffic by spring.

The slab has been under construction in Missouri Highway No. 61 for the last four years. The newly paved section near Jackson, 11 miles, was completed a weeks ago by E. L. Markham Construction Co. of Cape Girardeau.

FIVE QUARTS OF BEER BRING FINE OF $150

Cape Girardeau, October 14.—Berney Kern, Perryville, pleaded guilty of possession of liquor here yesterday and was fined $150 by Federal Judge Faris.

Although agents in obtaining a search warrant made an affidavit that they had bought beer at Kern's home. A charge of possession was placed against him when five quarts of beer was found.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Clay, of Mexico, Mo., spent several days the first of the week with Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Lawrence at the Del Rey Hotel.

SIKESTON D. & B. CORPS TO HAVE NATTY UNIFORMS

One long postponed wish of members of the Sikeston Drum and Bugle Corps, a unit of Post No. 114 of the American Legion, that of uniforms, will at last be realized. Commander Tanner C. Dye was informed this week that the natty black and gold suits would be shipped on October 25.

Twenty-one uniforms including an ultra-smart drum majors outfit were purchased. Drum Major Paul Slinkard will be attired in a black cape lined with old gold, black trousers of black cloth, but adorned with seam stripes of gold, and a plumed hat, which marks him immediately as leader of the pack.

The other twenty members of the corps will wear trousers of black with seam stripes of gold, and form fitting coats. The latter are button-to-the-top garments having a West Point collar. Three solid rows of brass buttons and cross cords of gold braid give the suits additional zip and snap. Caps will have a short visor, topped with a gold eagle who carries the American Legion emblem.

The first public appearance of the Drum and Bugle Corps will probably be at Caruthersville on November 11, when the local Post of the American Legion will participate in a district Armistice Day celebration.

The boys feel sure that the new uniforms will add materially to dress parade performances, and that the corps will revive some of its drooping spirit. To be perfectly frank, it is the opinion of members that the assurance of dressy uniforms has already acomplished the latter purpose, and the corps feels relatively sure of topping the list in competition with other musical organizations at the State convention of Legionnaires in St. Joseph.

The Co-Workers will meet Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. A. J. Moore at 2:30.

Wanda LaCour is on the sick list which her friends will be sorry to hear.

A bit more light has appeared in the case of the car wreck near New Madrid. Monday morning, when two girls were seriously injured and now lie in the Emergency Hospital suffering agony. The two youths, aged 17 and 19, secured some bootleg liquor in the neighborhood of Malden at an early hour in the morning, and were more or less under the influence of the liquor when the car was turned over. The boys were shaken up considerably, but not hurt, while the girls, riding in the rumble seat and sober, were badly hurt. Shouldn't the party who sold the booze have to pay the damage, or will the girls have to pay the hospital bill out of a small wage at the Elder Mfg. Co plant in St. Louis, or will the Emergency Hospital have to take the loss of room, nurses, food and medical attention?

From all indications, seed corn during 1931 will be scarce. Farmers who have seed of pure bred variety and who care to have it certified should get in touch with County Agent Renner immediately so that arrangements can be made with the Corn Growers' Association of Missouri, who will have a representative inspect the grain.

Weather experts think that the drouth prevailing in some parts of the country is caused by the failure of the north wind to meet the south wind and effect condensation of the moisture carried by the latter, but why the north wind should fail to function in its accustomed way, no one knows. When man attempts to question Nature too closely, his inquiries are cut short by the particular deity whom Emerson refers to as the "gods of bounds".

Pep up Democrats—get into the fray for democracy. If you have a drop of Democratic blood in your veins, now is the time to show it. There hasn't been a day in a century when the country needed to return to the Democratic landmarks of the fathers as it does in this good year of our Lord, 1930. If you are weary of hunting for work, feeding tramps, sixty-cent wheat, lower prices for your butter, chickens and eggs, an ever increasing legion of federal and state employes living off you, extravagance and waste—to say nothing of graft—shuck your coat and go to work for the Democratic ticket and vote for a change to better times.

Two of our Republican candidates in Scott County seem to be ashamed to tell the people about belonging to the Republican party. They have had their cards printed without the name of their party on it. This action no doubt was purposely taken in an attempt to deceive the people and make them forget that the Republican party is the father of the present depression in the United States. These two candidates have been distributing cards which give no indication of their political affiliation. Evidently they know that the people want a change from the present regime and are afraid to admit their allegiance to the G.O.P. For this reason they have their cards printed in a deceitful manner, hoping that the people will not notice the omission.—Chaffee Signal.

During the recent drouth many persons put out pails for water for birds and wild animals. At the S. T. Russell home in the southern suburbs, rabbits and 'possums came to quench their thirst during the night time. One of the 'possums took up her home in the smoke house. It wasn't long until an even dozen tiny little 'possums were left by the stork. Every time someone went into the smoke house the little 'possums disappeared, and the old mother 'possum took on a savage look of hostility. As time went by the little 'possums grew in size and cunning. They are still making their home in the same old place, but when persimmons get ripe there will likely be a 'possum migration.—West Plains Gazette.

A hard working wife is a man's greatest asset. But we have seen some instances of this where it proved to be a liability. Once in a while a husband will quit trying and turn the job of making a living over to the wife who seems so willing. In such cases there's a lot of whispered comment in the community on the shameful way that lazy man is doing. A little of the condemning ought to be directed at the wife who takes the family burden off the masculine shoulders and leaves the dish-washing and house cleaning for a job at a salary. This is all right if the one she took for better or worse will pay his room and board in cash instead of company, for it is often necessary for both to have an income to meet their obligations. What we hate to see is a man that is content to "let the women do the work." We have seen examples, however, where a family was broken up because the wife would do nothing but spend what her husband made. This is not so much her fault as it is his for letting her do it. Team work is needed in every family with an occasional row to assert the opinion of one over the other.—Shelbina Democrat.

DAY BY DAY WITH GOVERNOR PATTERSON

Another notorious gangster shot down in a New York hotel. Four men appeared at the door of his room, entered it and pumped four bullets into the body of their victim marked for slaughetr. At the time the man was undressed and unarmed.

This occurrence would ordinarily be accepted as an incident in the life of a great polyglot city whose devious currents cross and mingle witn the others in confusion. Such things can no longer be regarded though as mere incidents or as surprising. They have become so frequent as to be almost ordinary, exciting no particular interest, and yet they can only be rightfully viewed as phenomena which indicate the breaking down of law and order.

Nearly under similar circumstances another man, the gambler Rothstein, was killed, and by some strange turn of fate the same room in a hospital to which he was taken and died was the one that received, the mortally wounded Jack Diamond.

Hardly a day passes that the public does not sup on such horrors. In nearly every issue the newspapers carry these bloody and sordid details of crime.

What strikes the average person with amazement who lives away from these scenes, is how they can be so frequent where the police are supposed to be on duty for the prevention of crime, and the courts are open for the punishment of the criminals. This gang warfare armed to the teeth and stalking its victims, these blood and unavenged tragedies cannot be regarded otherwise than as signs of social disintegration, the breaking down of civilization in the largest cities of the country.

Another thing that seems almost unbelievable is how such murders can occur in public places and the perpetrators escape leaving no trace behind, how the criminals are not discovered, captured and brought to the bar of justice.

The questions which naturally arise are first, whether the police departments are competent, and if they are then whether there is not an understanding between the law and crime by which the latter is protected?

Any way the matter is viewed the situation has become intolerable and exasperating. What, we may ask will occur when New York and Chicago grow still larger? What will be the citizen's security in the future when organized murder bent on obtaining money at any price becomes bolder and more desperate and turns upon all classes of society?

When we read of the dictation of gangsters and racketeers, how they are beginning to prey upon business, demanding and receiving money for protection, it is enough to make us think of the price we pay for our great cities and consequent great lawlessness. The cities alone though are not affected by this flood of crime. It is now covering in some, if less degree, the whole country and is even reaching to the rural sections heretofore exempt. The bald, uncontroverted statement that our country is the most lawless nation in the world is a fact standing before us in all its bold and fearful significance.

The prime and greatest business of every well disposed citizen is to do what he can to remove this badge of national shame, and to support the principles of law and order.

Manifestly the efficient cause of our disorder and crime is not so much the racketeer as it is a general state of mind that has put the acquisition of money as the leading object of life. This has become an American obsession, coloring and disordering our civilization. When we measure human greatness in terms of dollars, and look upon national and private wealth as the badges of merit and distinction, it is almost to be expected that money will be sought by means foul or fair.

The truth is we have been too busy to care much about the essential things of civilization without which failure is inevitable. We have got to keep ourselves in order before we can expect order from the evil disposed.—Commercial Appeal.

ISSUED TUESDAY AND FRIDAY AT SIKESTON, MISSOURI

The Tuesday edition of The Standard carried an editorial paragraph criticising Dr. O'Bannon, Health Officer of New Madrid County for his failure, or refusal, to give first aid to two young ladies and a boy who were injured in an auto accident and carried to him for treatment The information as printed was given to the editor by Wade Tucker, a former sheriff of that county, and was printed as facts. Wednesday, Dr. O'Bannon called at The Standard office and stated the paragraph had placed him in a bad light and he felt hurt about it. He informs us that the injured folks were brought to his residence, and not his office, that they were plainly hospital cases, and he asked County Clerk Denton to act on behalf of the county court and get them to a hospital at once, which Clerk Denton did, and with Wade Tucker hurried them to the hospital at Sikeston. The Standard editor assisted in carrying the young women to the ward, where they were given immediate attention by the nurses and the surgeon. It was then that Mr. Tucker informed us Dr O'Bannon had refused to give them aid. Dr. O'Bannon stated he had no hospital facilities and was not prepared to give them attention. This is all printed in order that the readers of The Standard can understand the situation and form their own opinion. We were not present a New Madrid, but know the girls were in a pitiful condition when they reached the Emergency Hospital.

It looks a great deal like the country is evoluting back to the cave man state. Savage strength and savage might rules in gangland in the cities and in the rural districts petty thieves, murder and abductions are common. What we need most in the United States is prompt trial for all offenders and force the culprits to serve the full term. In England and Canada offenses are tried at once and if the prisoner is not prepared with his defense, it is his bad luck, for the trial proceeds. In this country if the offender has money, he can procure delays on one excuse or another until witnesses move away or die of old age. Every day the papers are full of murders, abductions, liquor offenders, and the like. We need fewer laws, then see they are enforced promptly.

The merchants and tradesmen of Sikeston, like those in other country cities, are desirous of stimulating business, reach out and try to bring in more. With this wish and desire, the merchants have decided to put on the first Dollar Day, or Sales Day, Saturday, October 25, with The Sikeston Herald printing the first lot of 5000 8-page posters carrying advertising for none but home merchants. These posters, or papers, will be printed, folded and mailed from The Herald office, the merchants to pay 40 cents per inch for the advertising space. This rate will barely pay cost and postage and both The Herald and The Standard expect to print two such sets of posters each, before the Holidays, being two weeks apart The Standard will send out the second lot calling for Dollar Day for Saturday, November 1. The merchants, tradesmen and professions generally are urged to back these publications in their efforts to stimulate trade and bring in new customers.

A man who settles his account with a postal card sent out through a bankrupt court, is in a very poor position to criticise the financial affairs of others. This should be remembered by candidates who seek favors from the people.

Tish, Tish and a pooh pooh.

We recall a so-called minister of the gospel, by name Jeffries, one of the hundred or lesser lights, who threw a few barbs along our primrose path, but such as that is hardly worth an additional pooh, not to mention a tish.

Comes now the Lions International organization with the latest bit of free publicity for The Sikeston Standard. An editorial written some weeks ago reviewed the economic situation in and near Sikeston. This week that editorial is in the hands of 2269 Lions Clubs with a request from H. A. Hill, assistant secretary Lions International, to have editors in those 2269 cities reproduce similar business stimulators in their editorial columns.

Seriously, it is the purpose of Lions Clubs everywhere to stimulate better business conditions during this "Business Confidence Week", and we feel gratified in having had even a slight bit to do with the restoration of confidence in business, or rather with the program of Lions International, dedicated to that purpose.

The sudden death of George R. Harper, Tuesday, from heart disease took from us one of the most genial and kind hearted gentlemen that we have ever known. He was close on to his allotted years of three score and ten when the summons came, and no man in the community was better fitted to meet his maker than was this kindly gentleman. Ever ready to help those in distress, a smile and a hearty hand shake, a pleasant word to all. That was Geo. R. Harper, friend, everybody's friend. While his soul has passed on, his memory will be treasured by acquaintances as long as they live. May the earth lie gently over his remains, may the grass be the greenest, may the flowers be the brightest.

There are a number of towns along the Frisco railroad in this vicinity, and strange as it may seem, all of these towns are Republican, where it isn't safe for a nigger to light. This was demonstrated in Mountain Grove a few days ago, so the Mountain Grove Journal relates: "Two scared-looking negroes, evidently Arkansas cotton hands, disembarked from the train here yesterday morning to walk the rest of the trip home, as their funds were about exhausted. They were hungry and had a little money but were afraid they would not be permitted to even eat here. One of our restaurants served them in the kitchen and they then started their hike."—West Plains Gazette.

Cape-C'ville Tie 0-0

Cape Girardeau, October 11.—The Cape Central High School Indians and a fighting team from Caruthersville battled to a scoreless tie here this afternoon, before a big crowd. The game was a see-saw affair, with neither eleven showing sufficient punch to put over a touchdown.

Farmington Beats Jackson

Farmington, October 11.—Farmington High School defeated Jackson here Friday afternoon, 12 to 0, in the first intersectional game of the season for the locals. Berlin Yates quarterback, figured in both of Farmington's touchdowns, scoring the first on a sweeping end run and executing a 40-yard pass to his brother, Robert, who sprinted across the line for the second.

Farmington has been undefeated as yet, having held both Webster Groves and Crystal City to 7-7 tie scores.

Dexter Is Winner 13-0

Dexter, October 11.—The Dexter Bearcats beat the Doniphan Dons here yesterday afternoon, by a score of 13 to 0.

Held scoreless in the first half, the Bearcats opened up a forward passing attack in the second half that netted two touchdowns. The Dons made a desperate rally in the final period, completing two or three forward passes for good gains, but the effort was shortlived.

Neither team showed any great offensive power.

KONJOLA AGAIN PROVES POWERS OVER AILMENTS

Marathon Dancer And Practical Nurse Finds New Medicine Master Remedy ---Gains Seven Pounds

MISS HAZEL BARKLEY

"For six months I was bothered with a severe pain in my back and legs", said Miss Hazel Barkley, practical nurse and marathon dancer, 416 West Fourth Street, Little Rock. "Indigestion too, was the cause of much discomfort. I lost weight, felt tired and worn out most of the time. I tried several medicines without benefit.

"Finally I decided to try Konjola. It went right to work and relieved the pain in my back and legs. I regained my appetite and slept better at night. I continued the treatment until I took five bottles. I now feel like a different person. I eat heartily without distress. Kidney trouble which caused the pains, is gone. I gained seven pounds in weight. I will always praise Konjola for what it has done for me".

And so it goes, the same glad story whenever Konjola is given a chance to make good. And what this medicine has done for others it will do for you—for everyone.

Konjola is sold in Sikeston at the Derris drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

A FRIDAY HALLOWEEN PARTY

It is a tradition handed down from the Druids, probably, that on Hallowe'en night wicked witches meet together in their various secret haunts to plan out their deeds of darkness. No one is safe from their deeds of darkness. No one is safe from their malice unless he knows how to take measures for his safety. Since Hallowe'en comes on Friday, itself a bad-luck day, we shall have to work all the magic we know to overcome the wiles of the witches and the influence of an unlucky day. The house should be decorated in a weird and spooky way with ghosts, black cats, bats, owls, witches and goblin-head lights. Yellow flowers and autumn leaves will look well with these decorations. In addition we must have plenty of good-luck emblems to break the curse of bad luck. These are branches of mountain ash, horseshoes, wishbones, rabbit feet, four-leaved clovers, and elephants. Invitation:

A wise old owl once said to me,
"It's wise to be light-hearted",
So let's become as wise as he
And on the road get started.
All bad luck that may come to you
Can be turned right about.
If a screech owl cries, the thing to do
Is turn your pocket out.

Games: Pulling Kale—This is an old Scotch game that can be modified for indoors. In the original game the ones seeking to know the future went into the garden and with eyes closed pulled a stalk. If earth stuck to the roots, it was a sign of good fortune. If the stem was straight or crooked, it indicated the figure of one's future husband or wife, and the disposition was shown by the taste of the heart of the stalk. Sticks to represent kale, with favors or funny fortunes attached to the ends, can be buried in a large box of sawdust.

Burning Nuts: The nuts are named and placed near each other in the fire. If they burn peacably together, the course of love will run smoothly. If they pop apart, it indicates that the pair will be separated.

Apple Seed: Name two apple seeds and stick them on the cheeks. The one dropping off first indicates that he will be unfaithful.

Peelings: Peel an apple without breaking the peeling, and throw it over the left shoulder. It will form the initial of the future spouse.

Clue of Thread: Throw a ball of wool out of the window, holding on to the loose end. Rewind it on a reel. The name of the future husband will be found attached to the other end.

Our new Stunt Initiation Party is excellent for Hallowe'en and is also a splendid one for club, college and school initiation parties.—Goodhousekeeping

"That Interesting Store"

Furniture—Radio—Undertaking

Our 33rd Year in Charleston

Take it from us, Mrs. Housekeeper, that the cost of furniture at present date is low—and when we say LOW we mean L-O-W. That fact being established, it is well to also understand it IS NOT going lower. Bankrupt factories have fallen into the hands of alert jobbers, strong financially, and when these stocks are finally disposed of it, it is safe to say no factory will saw up more patterns than they have already sold. There has not been a more opportune time in years to replenish your stock of home furnishings than right now. We are not acquainted with the policies of other merchants when prices decline but at this store you may rely on getting a hundred cents in value for each of your dollars.

The firm is especially proud of a certain walnut dining suite which is featured in the front window this week at $135.00 on weekly or monthly payments. This suite is of very pretty grain walnut, rather plain in appearance, easy to keep dust free and out of the ordinary run of sets at that figure. It is of the Queen Anne type and if you have been keeping your eyes on magazines lately, you have seen a good many of that period in advertising pages. The appearance of one's dining room has a good deal to do with the social estimate placed on the host by guests of the table.

Simmons Deep Sleep mattresses are real sleep producers and the price is only $23.00, an amount you have often paid perhaps for a mediocre felt mattress which is not anywhere near a Deep Sleep for comfort. We sell and deliver Deep Sleeps on a strict guarantee of satisfaction or money back.

An outstanding bargain in our used department is a pretty green enamel Moore's Range, which has not been used long. This stove is in A1 condition and guaranteed the same as if it was brand new. Moore's stoves are high grade you know. Look this one over. President Hoover is said to be sympathetic toward the suggestion that the Government purchase land outright in the Jadwin Floodway of Missouri instead of seeking to establish just value for flowage rights. What a pity his sympathies were not aroused a year and a half ago when he was pleaded with from many angles to use his executive powers in saving real estate values and business interests in Mississippi County from destruction at the hands of Jadwin. A revision of plans was denied us at that time by the President and business confusion regarding the future of our county has been prevalent ever since. If the "immediate purchase" plan by Congressmen Reid and Short is not mere political "applesauce", land owners in the doomed section may yet be saved. That will be sufficient ground for celebration if it comes to pass—even if town property values and trade fields this side of the setback levee are badly wrecked.

SMART FALL ACCESSORIES ADD VERVE AND SPARKLE TO THE COSTUME

It is impossible to consider the fall outfit as a unit without considering the jewelry that is designed to accompany it. This season it is more beautiful than ever. Beautiful in design and in color.

The new necklaces with tear drop pendants—often in the form of flowers, are lovely. Some are of simulated rubies—very charming ones from Paris have rubies set with tiny brilliants creating a novel and stunning effect. Facetted stones combined with flexible pendants are among the smartest novelties in costume jewelry introduced for fall.

One of the most effective of the new "gadgets" is a long jeweled shoulder strap for an evening frock. The strap ends in a large brooch and is unusually lovely. For jewelry of the informal type black and white combinations are well to the fore following the vogue for this color combination in fall costume. Necklaces and bracelets of beads simulating mother-of-pearl are set on gold links. Diamond-cut simulated crystals are shown in chokers of 18 to 20 inch length. These same crystals are shown in amusing necklaces that simulate Eton collars with cuff bracelets styled like little ruffles.

Black or Blue Glazed Kid

A novel type of glove to be worn with evening frocks is short—one button length and fits closely at the wrist. It may be had in black or blue glazed kid. The usual gloves of white glace kid vary in length but preserve a simplicity of style.

Gloves for daytime wear are shown in many black and white effects with gauntlet cuffs and detail of buttons or lacing. Among the novelties are gloves of white pigskin—extremely smart and "tailored" looking.

Envelope Bags of Suede

Handbags for fall give special importance to the envelope and pouch types. They are practical and combine with their practicability the important attribute of chic. Notable are envelope bags of suede or antelope—a logical accompaniment of the popular suede and antelope shoes so outstanding for fall. Calf and morocco bags with trimmings of reptile in bands or applied motifs are also numbered among fashion's favorites. Many of the pouch bags have stunning mountings of shell, others have effective clasps of crystal and colored stones. Beautiful details of lining and inner fittings make the autumn handbags among the lovliest noted in many seasons.

The Importance of Color

Because of the importance of black many of the smartest new hand bags for fall are shown in this color. Others are in blue—in all the shades fashion approves. Brown is strongly represented in a variety of shades that range from deep purpleish brown to light biege. Green comes next in importance, with red as a close runner-up for favor. A characteristic of fall is that the complete ensemble is not always carried out in one color, but is made piquant by color contrast. The hand bag plays an important part in carrying out this idea.

SUITABILITY TO THE COSTUME AND OCCASION MARKS THE SMART FALL APPAREL

Autumn fashions arrive, setting the keynote of the coming season—anticipating the mode and introducing those fascinating new details of line and silhouette that mean so much to the woman who studies each changing phase of style. Little change is noted in the silhouette—it is trim and feminine, softened in a variety of ways by clever neckline treatment and sleeve elaboration. An outstanding difference lies in the bloused back. The waist is fitted, the line is molded at the hips to a point just above the knees where it breaks, falling free to the hem line.

Dull Finished Weaves

The approved fabrics for daytime have a tendency toward the dull finished weaves. Suede cloth, crepe finished broadcloth, novelty jersey, erect pile velvet, Canton and spiral crepe are outstanding favorites for the afternoon frock. The predominance of black brings smart tailoerd frocks of fine woolens or Canton crepe. Many of these have the peplum as a style detail, Others use the bolero in real or simulated versions. Many of the black frocks have a color contrast in white or aquamarine, many have lingerie details of lace or linen.

The Grecian Influence

The more formal mode is touched at every point by the Grecian influence. A draped line calls for supple fabrics such as delustered satin, crepe roma or lame. The vogue for black and white leaves its imprint on frocks of this type. Many dinner gowns are shown in striking combinations of these colors. Dinner gowns with sleeves that fit closely to the elbow, thence breaking into unusual width in an "angel" sleeve effect, are noted among the new fashions. The three-quarter or elbow length sleeve continues to occupy a prominent place in frocks for fall with a continuance of the capelet bertha in gowns of the more formal type.

Further trimming touches are buttons, shirrings, gores, pressed godets and tucks. Bows, belts, symmetrical necklines and skirt treatments are details. The cowl or draped neckline is a favorite. Colors smart for autumn frocks are browns ranging from mauve tones to rosy biege. Green in rich or high deep tones. Rich vibrant reds and some light henna.

The Fall Coats

Fall coats are so varied in type that one may find a style for practically every occasion. Indeed so inclusive is the mode that the range of selectivity is broadened beyond that of any other season. Nearly all of the more formal versions are fitted. The sports types are the exception—many of them flaring from the shoulder.

Among the smartest fabrics for formal and semi-formal coats are monotone and two-tone tweeds, multo-colored nubbed tweeds and broadcloths. The truly formal type is often of velvet—rich and lustrous.

The Use of Many Furs

While luxurious fur trimming is noted on a number of fall coats the mode seems to tend more strongly to a conservative use of fur as trimming. The thin standing collars and rever fronts of such short haired furs as Persian lamb are more conspicuous.

The bloused back and bolero treatment are favored details with intricate seaming playing a prominent role in creating the fitted silhouette. Coats are belted, or not, with equal chic. Wide traight cuffs reaching above the elbow or gauntlet cuffs of such furs as krimmer; spiral cuffs of flat furt are details. The favored colors are black, brown, green, rich red and henna.

Suits are of outstanding importance for fall—nearly all with coats so long that only a bit of the skirt shows beneath the coat. The tendency is for the coat to be accompanied by a frock rather than the separate skirt and blouse mode with which we have become familiar. The suits are lavishly trimmed with fur—following in a general way the same fashion detail shown on separate coats.

For sports wear knitted suits and tweed suits are extremely good. Many woolen frocks with coats are a feature of autumn sports fashions.

Fur Handled Like Fabrics

Each year furs are handled with greater skill and artistry so that the rich pelts take on the appearance of fabrics, intricately worked. The fur coats are slender and graceful in line with bloused backs, tucks and tailored effects. Two outstanding types are approved—the one with huge upstanding collar and great sleeve elaboration and the tailored sports coat. In coats of the more "dressy" type caracul is outstanding with unshaved lamb, Persian lamb, mink, moire pony and ermine also in favor. Coats of the sports type are featured in lapin, baby panther, and muskrat, worked in novel effects.

Over and over again the idea of suitability in the autumn wardrobe is stressed. This means that one coat will not do for a variety of occasions. It must be suitable to the frock which it accompanies. For each outfit one must choose the correct accessories. Not only does this mean corect in color, but in type. For instance, the elaborate afternoon costume calls for handbags, gloves and shoes that have elaboration in the same degree. The sports outfits demand accessories that are simple and smart.

Furs for All Occasions

The woman who makes a study of fashion will find it almost necessary to have more than one fur coat in her autumn outfit. The styles this year are so varied that she will find one provided for nearly all occasions. For sports the simple swagger types of lapin, panther, muskrat, and beaver. For dress occasions, coats of Persian lamb, mink, ermine and combinations of these pelts.

This idea of suitability extends to the selection of fabrics. The afternoon frock is rich and lustrous, in fabric or has a dull elegance. The sports frock of tweed, jersey or simple crepe and the evening frock of delustered satin, crepe romaine or rish brocades.

In every field of modern apparel we find this cry for suitability. Indeed, it forms the keynote of the smart autumn outfits.

Dignity ni Autumn Fashions

One of the outstanding characteristics of the fall fashion parade is that the modes shown are subtly elegant and dignified. The mode introduced last season has been developed and refined—an atmosphere of poised femininity characterizes the whole. This is indeed a season of distinction in dress.

LAWYER BROUGHT BACK TO FACE CHECK CHARGE

St. Louis, October 13.—Meredith Sellards, 21, an attorney, who went to Dallas, Texas, several weeks ago, while being held under bond here on charges of passing worthless checks, was returned to St. Louis yesterday by Detective Sergeants McKenna and Collard.

Sellards' $9000 bond was signed by Anton Schmidt and William Dietrich, professional bondsmen. The arrest of Sellards in Dallas was brought about after the bondsmen had circulated a description of him and his machine.

Six warrants charging passing worthless checks were issued against Sellards after Miss Gertrude Kelly, convicted check passer, signed a statement implicating Sellards.

For the woman who sews well and has time, it is often an economy to make wash suits for small boys under six. A careful selection of a trouser pattern is essential. The Bureau of Home Economics has some helpful suggestions on this point in Leaflet 52-L. Suits for the Small Boy.

After all the crops have been removed from the truck garden, it is a good plan to remove all vines, dead plants, and other trash and sow the ground to rye or some other green crop. This will prevent the earth from washing, and the green material will improve the physical condition of the soil. If the garden is not sown to some crop, and if the soil is not subject to washing, plow or spade it and let the ground lie rough through the winter. This practice permits frost to kill insects as well as to lighten the soil by alternate freezing and thawing. Many gardeners plow the ground and apply coarse manure.

A CRIPPLED TEAM TO INVADE CHAFFEE

A crippled Bulldog team will take the field against Chaffee on the Red Devil's own grid Friday night. Bennett, contender for all-Southeast Missouri backfiled honors this season will not start. A torn cartilage suffered the day before the Charleston encounter here last Friday is still bothersome and will keep the key-man of the Sikeston offense benched.

Humphreys has been confined to his bed this week with malaria and cold and will not be in condition to play, and Fitzgerald suffered a cracked rib during scrimmage, placing this minature backfield ace on the sidelines. Fox will probably be on the bench at the start, and possibly during the game. Water on the knee stiffened the join and another of Cunningham's mainstays was placed on the willing but waiting list.

The reserves and Bulldog linesmen have been engaged in a solid week of scrimmage and signal work in an effort to uncork some kind of offensive play against the Red Devils on their home grounds. The line is still intact as far as injuries are concerned, but whether Cunningham and his assistants, Miller and Stallings can uncover enough backfield material to outsmart the Chaffee crew still remains to be seen. The odds favor the home team.

A large delegation of Sikeston rooters, business men and friends of the Bulldogs have expressed a desire to drive to Chaffee Friday night to witness the first performance of the locals under the glare of arc lights. It will mark the first appearance of any Bulldog football team in night football play and a record crowd is expected at Chaffee.

LIONS CLUB ANNOUNCES WINNERS IN CITY WIDE YARD AND GARDEN CONTEST

Although prizes will not be ready for distribution for a week or ten days, the Sikeston Lions Club Thursday announced winners in the city-wide beautification contest sponsored by the Club. Entrants were divided into four classes.

In Class No. 1, in which entrants themselves worked, the winners are:

First, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Rudy. $15; second, Mrs. Alice Edmondson. $7.50; third, Mrs. Harvey Morrison, $5; fourth, Mrs. Wm. Carson, floor lamp; fifth, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Scott, basket groceries.

Class No. 2, entrant employing common labor only:

First, Mrs. Mollie Mrshall, evergreen shrub; 2nd, Mrs. C. Greer, evergreen shrub; 3rd, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dover. evergreen shrub; 4th, Mrs. W. C. Bowman, evergreen shrub.

Class No. 3, entrant employing expert gardners, etc.:

First, E. C. Matthews; 2nd, C. D. Matthews; 3rd, Dr. T. C. McClure; 4th, Jos. L. Matthews. Each of these will receive a certificate of merit.

Class No. 4, members of the Lions Club:

First, H. C. Blanton; 2nd, C. E. Brenton; 3rd, Alvin Taylor; 4th, C C. White. Each of these winners will recieve a certificate of merit.

The committee on awards had to consider many things in determining winners in each class. The severe drouth ruined many fine lawns, killed shrubs, and stunted beds of flowers. The committee had to consider whether or not the entrant had a water supply available to artificially keep alive his plantings which otherwise would have died. The awards were made on the basis of points, and in a few cases only, a few find distinctions kept entrants out of the money, and placed them in third or fourth places.

Club members are gratified with the results, and hope that next spring will find an awakened interest in the work of beautifying the home. Several dozen prospective entrants refused to sign cards at the beginning of the contest, and these could not be considered in making awards. Those, it is hoped. will have overcome their natural shyness and still sign up when the proper time comes next spring.

$10,000 DAMAGE SUIT FILED AGAIST BOYCE CO. IN DEATH OF NEGRO

Mound City, Ill., October 16.—After waiving a preliminary examination, Harry D. Cooley, of Sikeston, Mo., alleged to have been driving the truck that struck and fatally injured Rodney England, colored, of Mounds. on the hard road near the National cemetery some time ago, was held over to the action of the grand jury in the October term of circuit court and his bond was set at $5000. Cooley had not been able to fill bond this morning, but is expected to do so late today or tomorrow.

A lawsuit which grew out of the accident was revealed here today with the announcement that young England's father, Rhome England of Mounds had filed a suit for $10,000 damages against Charles Boyce, of Sikeston. Boyce is the owner of the truck which is alleged to have knocked England from the running board of his parked machine and is a dealer in International trucks. It was an international truck that Cooley was driving on the night of the accident. The damage suit was filed under the 'death by wrongful act" provision of the Illinois State laws Boyce is covered by an indemnity policy and may be defended by the insurance company.

The inquest into England's death was held late Wednesday in the undertaking parlors of E. A. Burke Coroner Dan Sullivan was in charge A verdict was returned to the effect that England came to his death by the right side of his head being crushed by a blunt instrument, his body being found on Route 2, two miles southeast of Mounds on the night of October 7.

The verdict made no suggestion indicating that the blunt instrument may have been the truck driven by Cooley.

SIKESTON LOSES A BUSINESS VETERAN

George R. Harper died unexpectedly Tuesday evening at his home on School and Kendall Streets, following a chronic heart attack and the roll of Sikeston business men lost one of its most congenial and best liked members. Customers of the H. & H. Grocery and fellow business men alike, dropped in frequently for a friendly chat, and seldom did anyone find 'Old Man" Harper without a smile, a cheerful word—and the stub of a cigar. He was one of Front Street's front rank members.

For a number of days preceeding Tuesday, Mr. Harper complained of peculiar darting pains in his chest and arms. He was advised frequently to consult a physician, but the matter was deferred until Tuesday noon. Then he decided to remain at home to recuperate from his "cold" and the peculiar feeling in his chest.

Shortly after six o'clock Mrs. Harper inquired whether he felt like eating a light supper. He decided he would and attempted to get up. Before a doctor could reach his bedside, he had breathed his last.

He was born September 5, 1864 in Stoddard County near Dexter, and spent the early days of his life in that community. In 1917, the family moved to Noxall, where Mr. Harper and his oldest son, Sy Harper, operated a mercantlie business.

Two years later, the business was sold out and the Harpers moved to Sikeston and maintained a similar store in the Beck Building on Front Street. Some eleven years ago, W. E. Hollingsworth sold his interest in a grocery concern across the street from the Harper store, and since that time the business was known as the H. & H. Grocery, Hollingsworth and Harper. A half interest was later purchased by Bob Mow, who has been associated with Mr. Harper for the past eight years.

Funeral services will be conducted sat the first Christian church here, Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Mr. Harper was an ardent Christian, and served on the official board for a number of years. Rev. A. A. Hedges of Dexter will officiate. Interment will be made in an old family burial ground 10 miles north of Dexter known as the Harper Cemetery.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Harriet Harper. Only a day beore her husband's death, the couple had celebrated their forty-first wedding anniversary. Six children, all of who will be present for the services, also survive. They are: H. S. 'Sy" Harper of Jerome, Idaho, Ralph of Green River, Wyoming, who with his wife is expected to arrive here Friday: Max Harper of Nampa, Idaho, Mrs. W. A. Singleton of Chaffee, Mrs. Alfred Bloomfield of Edinburg, Texas and Mrs. Shirley Bloomfield of this city. Five grandchildren and the only near relative of Mr. Harper Mrs. Lelia Stewart, of Dexter, wil also attend.

RED CROSS DRIVE GETS UNDER WAY IN COUNTY, SIKESTON RESPONSE HEALTHY

The 1930 Red Cross Roll Call drive was about half completed Thursday, according to C. E. Brenton, county chairman.

While an indefinite goal had been set this year, Chairman Brenton was well pleased with the response accorded workers in this city. Those out of employment were unable to donate, but in many cases expressed their willingness to do so "when work picked up". Those who are employed subscribed nearly 100 per cent, as evidenced by the fact that nearly every store and office including, the State Highway Department and the Milling Company offices went over the top with the big 100 per cent banner. So hearty was the response in this filed that the workers have disposed of all such banners and need more.

Members of the Russell-Bradley Missionary Society, the American Legion Auxiliary and members of the Lions Club and business men made up 25 2-man teams starting their work early Tuesday morning. Members of Auxiliary were to start their drive this afternoon.

While there is a decline in memberships in some instances, the average size of donations is considerably larger. Mr. Brenton sees in this an awareness on the part of the general public, and especially those who are able to give, of actual conditions. Only a few business houses gave less than $5.00 and some, as well as individuals about town, gave as much as $25.

Blodgett workers were scheduled to take up the task in that city Friday. Illmo-Fornfelt and Ancell have set next week to start the drive there. Morley and Benton are completing their roll call drives, while Chaffee started work there Wednesday.

As in previous years the teaching staff in the high and grammar schools subscribed 100 per cent, and both institutions are displaying the big Red Cross banner.

Mr. Brenton explained the reason for not setting a concrete goal this year in terms of relief. "No matter how much we raise locally or in the district", said the Chairman, "the amount will still fall short of our requirements." Preliminary estimates, it will be remembered, placed the number of destitute cases in Scott County alone, at 300 families.

Although the National Chapter is not seemingly aware of the situation in drouth areas, the local office has on file two cases of death from undernourishment and actual starvation. The family was too proud to ask for assistance.

SIKESTON AND CAPAHAS IN FINAL TILT OF FIVE-GAME SERIES SUNDAY

Managers Bill Sulivan and Tom Malone agreed Thursday morning to bring the Cape Girardeau Capahas and the Sikeston club together for a final clash next Sunday at Fairgrounds park. Rumors prevailed earlier in the week to the effect that the Cape Girardeau team would be disbanded for the season, but the managers decided not to allow a two and two deadlock to carry over until next season.

The playoff will find at least four players from outside leagues and associations on the diamond. Benny Tate, first string receiver for the Chicago White Sox, has been asked to receive Lefty Fuhr's offerings. Lefty, himself, spent the past two summers with New Orleans.

Wid Matthews, outfielder with Little Rock this past summer, and veteran of the 1924 world's series playing with Washington, will hold down the centerfield area for the locals. The Capahas will have Si Lingle, Des Moines, Iowa, catcher, receiving for Elam Van Gilder, a Toledo Mud Hen twirler, who has twice balked the local club.

Both teams battled royally last Sunday in a 13-inning contest, which was finally decided in favor of the Capahas, when Nenninger drove Sariff across with the winning run as dusk settled across the playing field in Cape Girardeau.

WILL CONSIDER CHARITY FUND FOR HOSPITAL HERE

The one Sikeston institution known to residents in Southeast Missouri from Poplar Bluff to Cairo, and from Caruthersville to Cape Girardeau, the Emergency Hospital, will be the center of discussion at a special called mass meeting of business and professional men, civic leaders, church groups, and heads of semi-charitable and school officials next Tuesday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock The meeting will be called to order at that time in the New Armory Hall.

In October, 1927, a newcomer to the professional ranks in Sikeston Dr. H. M. Kendig. realized his dream in part at least of starting an Emergency Hospital. Associated with him at that time and to this day was one of the veterans, Dr. G. W. Presnell. The start was small, and the hospital confined itself to two rooms in the Sexton building.

In December two women settled a difference of opinion in fistic combat and both participants in the fray were brought to the new hospital rooms for treatment. That seemed to be the turning point, and since that time, the institution has rented every available room on the second floor of the building. Ten beds are available, and in some cases additional accommodations are provided on cots.

Hundreds of persons in the district have received treatment for various ailments. Difficult operations have been performed, for the purchase of additional equipment early became necessary until now the operating room is equipped with the latest in surgical lines.

The Emergency Hospital gathered for itself a name now recognized in the territory it serves. It has saved lives and has relieved suffering, but it has not been a success financially. Many of its inmates have been outright charity cases, and others were able to pay only a fractional part of their board, lodging, nursing and physicians' bill. It is to assist in defraying the constantly mounting overhead expense and possibly providing for a charity ward, that the Tuesday meeting is called.

COUNCIL APPROVES LIGHT PLANT PLANS

Plans and specifications for Sikeston's proposed Municipal Light Plant were read and with a few minor exceptions, approved last Monday night by the City Council.

A few small changes were deemed necessary and Engineer W. A Fuller of St. Louis was ordered to make the necessary corrections, and notify the Council as soon as the work was completed. The specifications will next be published for the convenience of bidders on the work, and a notice to contractors calling attention to the proposed letting of the contract, published in trade magazines and newspapers.

BEN HUR LODGE TO MEET

Members of the Sikeston Chapter of Ben Hur will meet next Monday night, October 20 at 8 o'clock in the I. O. O. F. Hall. A. L. Solomon, supervisor, will be present. Business matters affecting the order will be transacted.

SMALL FIRE DAMAGE

A defective flue at the Geo. Limbaugh home, 400 Daniels Street caused damage to the roof, amounting to about $25 at 10:20 o'clock Thursday morning.

A cigarette tossed out of an hotel window Monday evening is believed to have caused a fire which damaged a Buick sedan, parked in the alley back of Shep's Place.

We failed to learn who the fair donor was except that she said she knew us, but lived out of the State. The following card accompanied the blanket which was delivered by the manager of the store. "This is to fold at the foot of your bed so you will not need your wife's petticoat". Well, thanks awfully.

Without knowledge or consent of the physicians who are operating the Emergency Hospital, several business men and citizens decided to call a mass meeting at the Armory for 2:00 o'clock Tuesday afternoon next, to suggest and provide ways and means to help in the deficit attending the operation of this very necessary institution. This is not to provide funds for these physicians, but is to help pay the nurses, the laundry, the food, the light, and other necessary expenses. An Emergency Hospital is just that. In emergency cases all are taken in and cared for without questioning their abliity to pay, for the sick and maimed must be given immediate attention in order to save life. The private practice of these physicians is the same as other physicians in the city, all of whom do their share of charity work, but the operating expenses of the hospital, in addition to the charity of Drs. Kendig and Presnell, should be looked after by big-hearted and Christian people alike, and not be a constant drain on the private purses of these gentlemen. The Standard editor personally knows a lot about the inside workings of the Emergency Hospital and the wonderful work they are doing.

We are told that some of our Republican candidates for office in Scott County are getting rather personal in some of their allusions and may be called on to prove same. If there is a Scott County officer that is dishonest, he should be kicked out, but we have never heard of anything of the sort until these Republican candidates begun to spout.

State Superintendent of Schools, Chas. A. Lee, and Judge Ellison, candidate for the Supreme Court on the Democratic ticket, were Sikeston visitors Saturday evening. Mr. Lee is a canddiate for re-election and very popular throughout the State. The Standard editor acknowledges a very pleasant visit from the gentlemen.

FULBRIGHT FOR CONGRESS THE MAN FOR THE PEOPLE

Permit us to suggest to the people of Pemiscot County and elsewhere that if they want a representative in Congress this term who will really represent the people of this district, they should select Jim Fulbright to the post. Fulbright was born and reared in this part of Missouri (he is a native of Cape Girardeau county) and he knows and understands the needs and desires of his people. For the past two years we have had in Washington a man of much culture, a man who even went to Europe to finish out his education. He is a public speaker, a preacher, a teacher, a man of fine mental qualification for almost any task. We would not for a moment detract from Dewey Short's natural and acquired endowments—he has plenty of brains and can make a most excellent impression wherever he goes. But in pursuing his higher education and in mixing and mingling with the aristocracy here, there and everywhere, Dewey has rather lost touch with the common, ordinary, every-day sort of people and he gave evidence of this fact in the way he voted while in Congress. Every time there was an opportunity to cast a vote which would benefit the people and organizations of great wealth Mr. Short could be depended upon to cast his that way, and he did. He was for every clause in the high-powered Hawley-Smoot-Grundy high tariff bill—he never once thought that he would be piling up living costs upon the poor man or if he did think of it he regarded it very lightly. He wanted the sugar barons, the lumber kings, the big hide and shoe men, the cement makers, all the big boys, to have the opportunity to get theirs, whatever the cost might be to the boys back home, at the forks of the creek or along the ditch bank. He was hand in glove with the administration all the way through, the old guard, the die-hards. He was by no manner of means among the sons of wild jackasses whom Senator Moses spoke of so feelingly, who have been tendering their best efforts toward a square deal for the farmer and the wage earner in recent years. But Mr. Short probably cannot help being that way. His nature and training are in that direction and it is not natural to expect him to feel an interest in the large mass of people who find life a difficult problem at best—and this class composes 90 per cent of the citizens he has ostensibly been representing. It is different with Mr. Fulbright. He had his origin among the lowly and he has never strayed from his original viewpoint. He can see the difference in legislation which will benefit them and that which will benefit the wealth—make them still richer and the poor still poorer—and you may rest assured that his heart and his conscience will direct his vote in your behalf. He makes no pretentions to great erudition. He was educated in the schools of his district and State, going as far as his means would permit, and he knows enough to make a good legislator, stopping just short of knowing too much. People of moderate means and moderate stations in life should have no difficulty in choosing between the two, though of course it would be easy to guess who would be the choice of millionaires.—Caruthersville Democrat.

It is our opinion that the fellow out of work would do well to take any kind of work offered him, and he should not be too independent and expect to set the price of his labor. It's going to be hard sledding for many and he that can honestly get enough to hold body and soul together will be fortunate to some degree. We have heard it stated that "that much a day won't keep me and my family," when without labor and a wage he is managing to live somehow. There is but one way and that is to manage. Good substantial staples such as bacon, white or other beans, sweet and white potatoes, and cornbread are the cheaper foods and do more to strengthen than any other kind. Cheap food is preferable to hunger. There's not an item on this bill of fare that we don't like, and eat. Many are going to have to trim their sails to suit the cold winds of winter—Charleston Courier.

WHEN CHILDREN SUFFER

Tillie Witt - County Nurse, says:

"There are many distressing conditions in Scott county that are not known to the public.

"School examinations reveal many of these. Many children are out of school on account of lack of clothes and food.

"In a certain rural school in this county there were five children from one family who were pale and wan and poorly clad. Upon investigation and questioning it was found that these children had been living on potatoes for more than three weeks. All the clothes that they owned were the ragged ones that they were wearing. Without more food and clothes these children will suffer great hardships this winter. These children were all failing in their school work.

"Children cannot have good health or be expected to do good school work under such conditions.

We suppose it won't be long until the Republican bosses will telegraph the Government authorities at St. Louis to send U. S. officials into Pemscot County to aid in intimidating the colored people to vote the Republican ticket. They have done this in the last few elections under the guise and pretense of preventing the Democrats from intimidating the colored voters, when in fact the Republicans are the only intimidators. We are informed that the Republican bosses are now telling the negroes that if they do not come out and vote the Republican ticket they will run them out of the county, or prosecute them for not voting, etc. Any negro with sense enough to find the way home knows no one need vote if he does not choose to, and that if he does desire to vote, he can do so as he pleases. The Democrats are not attempting to intimidate anyone. It is the Republicans who are trying to bluff.—Caruthersville Democrat.

"Security" in connection with farm loans to be made to farmers in the drouth relief program has prevented many from making application, who really needed financial assistance. That word proved the bugaboo, but none could expect to receive loans without giving security for there would be as many, or more, who would obtain loans, without security, as there would be from those who really need funds to carry on and who could not give security. That is the reason for so few applications and also the reason why security is a provision. It behooves every able bodied man to take up another hole in his belt and go after whatever may be available in the shape of work. Now is no time to refuse any kind of honest labor. SOUTHEAST MAYORS DISCUSS SURVEY TAXATION PLAN

By Fred Naeter

The monthly meeting of Southeast Missouri Mayors was held Thursday night with Ira M. Morris, Mayor of Malden and president of the organization, presiding. The meeting was devoted to a general discussion of the State Survey program and after going into it fully it was resolved to adopt a resolution at the next meeting to put all the force possible back of it so the next legislature will aodpt it as practically as it is written.

Hon. Langdon R. Jones, lawyer at Kennett, a member of the legislature and a member of the Survey Commission, explained in particular the educational provisions of the report. Because of changed conditions he said the rich school districts have for years been getting the main state report while the poor districts have been getting the least support. St. Louis and Kansas City, with a small school tax levy, have been getting about one-third of all the state aid. There are 30 school districts in the state that levy only a 5-cent tax every other year because of their great riches while hundreds of other districts are collecting a school tax of more than $2 and get less state support.

The survey plan is to have all districts levy a school tax of 20 cents and then the state will provide the balance needed to give every school an 8-months term costing $900 per room. In hundreds of districts this provision will give better schools and at the same time will relieve an overburdened people of an unjust taxation.

About the only opposition to this plan, Mr. Jones said, comes from large centers where it is claimed that every school district should collect the maximum school tax before it gets maximum state aid. That is the law now, only it is not necessary for the rich districts to collect the maximum. The 20-cent levy is recommended because it will affect most all schools in the state and under the plan for an income tax the state can well afford to give such relief. No taxpayer now paying his share of taxes will have to pay any more, but those taxpayers who have not been paying their share will have to do so. The plan is for the state during a 10-year period to build up a better system of public schools and take over at least 80 per cent of the cost.

Dr. Loeb, the famous economist in St. Louis, who has been employed to find fault with the survey program by the Associated Industries of Missouri virtually approved the program when he made his first attack, Mr. Jones said. Mr. Loeb said there were no reliable data to show that tangible property now represents only 20 per cent of the wealth of the State but pays 96 per cent of the taxes, as stated by Chairman Gary, of the State Survey Commission. At the same time he said that when he was a member of the State Tax Commission in 1906 he found that intangible property was escaping taxation to such a great degree that he proposed legislation to bring it within reach of the tax assessor. "Thus Dr. Loeb agreed that even as far back as 1906 intangbile property, such as money stocks, bonds, notes, etc., was largely escaping taxation and everybody knows that since 1906 the value of tangible property, as money, stocks bonds, notes, etc., have greatly depreciated in value. So Dr. Loeb in trying to offset the statement of Mr. Gary goes stronger than Mr. Gary did in showing that wealth escapes taxation while the burden on property grows greater year after year, Mr. Jones explained.

Metropolitan newspapers persist in saying that great additional tax revenue is called for in the survey program, Mr. Jones said. They either misrepresent the facts intentionally or through ignorance. Of the entire 10-year program, estimated to cost about $196,000,000, the public schools get $100,000,000. But this does not mean new or additional help. It means that this money will be shifted largely from tangible property to intangible property. The money will be spent whether the survey program is adopted or not, but land will have to pay it instead of wealth. The $40,000,000 recommended for eleemosynary expense will have to be paid under any circumstance. If the survey program is adopted the State will pay it out of revenue collected from wealth. If it is not adopted the counties will have to pay it from taxation on property.

Only $40,000,000 of added revenue are asked for under the survey program, about $4,000,000 a year for new buildings and improvements at State institutions. This added money would come through the income tax on wealth and would not touch taxation on property.

Under the survey program the State will collect from wealth and spend on public school nearly $9,000,000 more than it now spends, bringing the total State aid up to about $12,000,000. This will take about $9,000,000 of taxation off of property, Mr. Jones explained. St. Louis, Kansas City, and every other school district in the State will immediately feel the beneficial effect of shifting the tax burden.

Fred Naeter, a member of the Survey Commission, called attention particularly to the taxation features of the survey program. The plan is to shift in a measure taxation from property to wealth. In 1928 the Federal government collected over 52 millions in Missouri through the income tax while the State collected less than four millions through its income tax. This tremendous sum came from wealth and not a dollar from property and no one complained. The plan is to have the State income tax law made effective as is the Federal law. Then the State will collect about one-third the amount collected by the Federal government, which will be from 16 to 18 millions. This taxation will be levied entirely on money income. No one who does not have an adequate money income will have to pay this tax. The poor will not be touched but the rich will have to pay moderately. Through this method, which is used so successfully by the Federal government, Missouri will shift its terribly depressing tax burden from property to wealth, and in this process the owners of wealth will hardly notice it while the owners of property thruout the State, in the cities as well as in the country, will immediately be relieved to a large extent. At the end of the 10-year program wealth will be carrying 80 per cent of the tax load and property will be carrying 20 per cent, which will be in proportion to its actual value.—Cape Missourian.

The Pemscot County farmer who had a good acreage in alfalfa this year certainly hit it lucky. The season was one of the finest for harvesting, being so little rain to interfere, and the yield has been good. Five to six cuttings are being had and the price is much better than usual, probably $20 to $24 a ton instead of the usual $12 to $15. This is qiute a contrast with the 3 to 3 1-2 cent cotton, with a yield of a bale and a half to the acre. Taken one year with another alfalfa at $10 a ton will beat the average cotton in cash returns and it has a great deal less of the worries attendant upon cotton raising. It leaves the land in much better condition, too, and to our way of thinking beats the cotton game forty ways for Sunday, or word to that effect.—Caruthersville Democrat.

GALLOWAY'S CUSTOMER SMOKES $10 CIGAR

"What this country needs most is a good five-cent cigar"—Vice-President Thomas R. Marshall.

Tastes seem to have changed since the Wilson administration. At least so thinks Paul Galloway, owner of a Sikeston drug store, and now victim of a dapper young fellow who smokes $10 cigars.

The dapper one walked into the drug store Sunday afternoon and approached the cigar counter with:

"Gimme a ficent ceegar". He toosed a slighlty wrinkled ten dollar bill on the counter.

"What else " asked Lewis Walker, clerk, as he rung up a 5c sale and extracted $9.95 in change.

"Nothin' ", said the brown suited, dark complected young man, checking his change as he walked out. "Nothin' else".

Tuesday afternoon, Lacy Allard bank clerk, made a discovery. Jeffersons' likeness adorned the face of one $10-bank note tendered for deposit by Galloway, and that of Hamilton graced another. Hamilton ordinarily and legally dominates the genuine ten spots.

Closer inspection of the bogus "Jeffersonian" bill gave evidence of much painstaking work. Exactly twenty figures "two" had been raised to read $10. The large letters "WO" in two had been erased and the letters "EN" substituted.

The dapper one could not be reached for an interview on the quality of his ten dollar smoke.

NEGRO BUYS 380-ACRE FARM NEAR MARSTON

The sale of a 380-acre of rich black farm land to Ed Vance, negro was recorded this past week. Vance saved his money sharecropping south of Sikeston, and purchased the farm outright.

Vance says he will plant about 100 acres in grain this fall, reserving slightly less than 100 acres for cotton next spring. He has already planted rye for spring hog pasture and intends to plant corn, soybeans and peas on part of the land. Cattle, hogs, and chickens will supplement his anticipated income from cotton, but Vance is not sold on planting the entire farm in the latter corp. "A man'll go broke dat way, suh", he stopped long enough to comment Monday morning.

This farmer recently found two stray hound dogs on his place, and has complied with the law in advertising the fact. The owners may still have the animals by paying publication fees, and the three-month board bill.

The dogs are being asked nowadays to help pay for their "keep" by tracing occasional bobcats, which Vance says abound on the 380-acre tract, and by treeing big red fox squirrels. The negro farmer will cut cord wood, stave timber and sawmill lumber from part of the recently acquired tract, to help ou until next crop season.

GREEN STORE ROOM TO BE OCCUPIED

The storeroom formerly occupied by the Green Department Store on Front and New Madrid Streets will house the Powell Insurance Agency and Harry Lampert's Store after this week.

Office equipment of the Powell Agency was moved into its new home late Wednesday evening. The office fronts on New Madrid Street and is separated from the Lampert store by a partition. It was formerly located upstairs in the same building.

The Lampert Store, now located in the Hobbs Building on North New Madrid Street, will be moved to its new location on Front Street as soon as decorators can finish with the interior of the new location.

MISSIONARY CLASS TO SELL MAGAZINE SUBSCRIPTIONS

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Roth are leaving Thursday for a few days in St. Louis.

NEW SLAB ON 61 READY FOR TRAFFIC

Jackson, October 15.—The new stretch of pavement on Highway 61 between Cape Girardeau and three miles west of this city will be opened to traffic Saturday. This will be the final link of pavement connecting St. Louis and Cape Girardeau, as the 20-mile stretch between Farmington and Fredericktown was opened shortly after Easter.

The only unpaved stretch now existing between St. Louis and Memphis, Tenn., after Saturday will be that between Sikeston and four miles south of Cape Girardeau, a distance of 30 miles. This section is under construction at the present time and is to be paved and open to traffic by spring.

The slab has been under construction in Missouri Highway No. 61 for the last four years. The newly paved section near Jackson, 11 miles, was completed a weeks ago by E. L. Markham Construction Co. of Cape Girardeau.

FIVE QUARTS OF BEER BRING FINE OF $150

SIKESTON D. & B. CORPS TO HAVE NATTY UNIFORMS

One long postponed wish of members of the Sikeston Drum and Bugle Corps, a unit of Post No. 114 of the American Legion, that of uniforms, will at last be realized. Commander Tanner C. Dye was informed this week that the natty black and gold suits would be shipped on October 25.

Twenty-one uniforms including an ultra-smart drum majors outfit were purchased. Drum Major Paul Slinkard will be attired in a black cape lined with old gold, black trousers of black cloth, but adorned with seam stripes of gold, and a plumed hat, which marks him immediately as leader of the pack.

The other twenty members of the corps will wear trousers of black with seam stripes of gold, and form fitting coats. The latter are button-to-the-top garments having a West Point collar. Three solid rows of brass buttons and cross cords of gold braid give the suits additional zip and snap. Caps will have a short visor, topped with a gold eagle who carries the American Legion emblem.

The first public appearance of the Drum and Bugle Corps will probably be at Caruthersville on November 11, when the local Post of the American Legion will participate in a district Armistice Day celebration.

The boys feel sure that the new uniforms will add materially to dress parade performances, and that the corps will revive some of its drooping spirit. To be perfectly frank, it is the opinion of members that the assurance of dressy uniforms has already acomplished the latter purpose, and the corps feels relatively sure of topping the list in competition with other musical organizations at the State convention of Legionnaires in St. Joseph.

The Co-Workers will meet Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. A. J. Moore at 2:30.

Wanda LaCour is on the sick list which her friends will be sorry to hear.

A bit more light has appeared in the case of the car wreck near New Madrid. Monday morning, when two girls were seriously injured and now lie in the Emergency Hospital suffering agony. The two youths, aged 17 and 19, secured some bootleg liquor in the neighborhood of Malden at an early hour in the morning, and were more or less under the influence of the liquor when the car was turned over. The boys were shaken up considerably, but not hurt, while the girls, riding in the rumble seat and sober, were badly hurt. Shouldn't the party who sold the booze have to pay the damage, or will the girls have to pay the hospital bill out of a small wage at the Elder Mfg. Co plant in St. Louis, or will the Emergency Hospital have to take the loss of room, nurses, food and medical attention?

From all indications, seed corn during 1931 will be scarce. Weather experts think that the drouth prevailing in some parts of the country is caused by the failure of the north wind to meet the south wind and effect condensation of the moisture carried by the latter, but why the north wind should fail to function in its accustomed way, no one knows. When man attempts to question Nature too closely, his inquiries are cut short by the particular deity whom Emerson refers to as the "gods of bounds".

Pep up Democrats—get into the fray for democracy. If you have a drop of Democratic blood in your veins, now is the time to show it. There hasn't been a day in a century when the country needed to return to the Democratic landmarks of the fathers as it does in this good year of our Lord, 1930. If you are weary of hunting for work, feeding tramps, sixty-cent wheat, lower prices for your butter, chickens and eggs, an ever increasing legion of federal and state employes living off you, extravagance and waste—to say nothing of graft—shuck your coat and go to work for the Democratic ticket and vote for a change to better times.

Two of our Republican candidates in Scott Conuty seem to be ashamed to tell the people about belonging to the Republican party. They have had their cards printed without the name of their party on it. This action no doubt was purposely taken in an attempt to deceive the people and make them forget that the Republican party is the father of the present depression in the United States. These two candidates have been distributing cards which give no indication of their political affiliation. Evidently they know that the people want a change from the present regime and are afraid to admit their allegiance to the G.O.P. For this reason they have their cards printed in a deceitful manner, hoping that the people will not notice the omission.—Chaffee Signal.

During the recent drouth many persons put out pails for water for birds and wild animals. At the S. T. Russell home in the southern suburbs, rabbits and 'possums came to quench their thirst during the night time. One of the 'possums took up her home in the smoke house. It wasn't long until an even dozen tiny little 'possums were left by the stork. Every time someone went into the smoke house the little 'possums disappeared, and the old mother 'possum took on a savage look of hostility. As time went by the little 'possums grew in size and cunning. They are still making their home in the same old place, but when persimmons get ripe there will likely be a 'possum migration.—West Plains Gazette.

A hard working wife is a man's greatest asset. But we have seen some instances of this where it proved to be a liability. Once in a while a husband will quit trying and turn the job of making a living over to the wife who seems so willing. In such cases there's a lot of whispered comment in the community on the shameful way that lazy man is doing. A little of the condemning ought to be directed at the wife who takes the family burden off the masculine shoulders and leaves the dish-washing and house cleaning for a job at a salary. This is all right if the one she took for better or worse will pay his room and board in cash instead of company, for it is often necessary for both to have an income to meet their obligations. What we hate to see is a man that is content to "let the women do the work." We have seen examples, however, where a family was broken up because the wife would do nothing but spend what her husband made. This is not so much her fault as it is his for letting her do it. Team work is needed in every family with an occasional row to assert the opinion of one over the other.—Shelbina Democrat.

The wedding bells had pealed some time ago, yet the attendants and the functionaries were still standing around embarrassedly waiting for the principals to show up. At last the bridegroom came tearing down the corridor.

"Am—am I late?" he gasped.

The best man put out a hand to comfort him.

"No, you're on time," he assured him. "The bride was delayed in getting a divorce from her last husband."

"Well, of all the rotten luck!" the bridegroom exclaimed, hurling his gardenia to the floor, "I could have kept that date with Helen!"

DAY BY DAY WITH GOVERNOR PATTERSON

Another notorious gangster shot down in a New York hotel. Four men appeared at the door of his room, entered it and pumped four bullets into the body of their victim marked for slaughetr. At the time the man was undressed and unarmed.

This occurrence would ordinarily be accepted as an incident in the life of a great polyglot city whose devious currents cross and mingle with the others in confusion. Such things can no longer be regarded though as mere incidents or as surprising. They have become so frequent as to be almost ordinary, exciting no particular interest, and yet they can only be rightfully viewed as phenomena which indicate the breaking down of law and order.

Nearly under similar circumstances another man, the gambler Rothstein, was killed, and by some strange turn of fate the same room in a hospital to which he was taken and died was the one that received, the mortally wounded Jack Diamond.

Hardly a day passes that the public does not sup on such horrors. In nearly every issue the newspapers carry these bloody and sordid details of crime.

What strikes the average person with amazement who lives away from these scenes, is how they can be so frequent where the police are supposed to be on duty for the prevention of crime, and the courts are open for the punishment of the criminals. This gang warfare armed to the teeth and stalking its victims, these blood and unavenged tragedies cannot be regarded otherwise than as signs of social disintegration, the breaking down of civilization in the largest cities of the country.

Another thing that seems almost unbelievable is how such murders can occur in public places and the perpetrators escape leaving no trace behind, how the criminals are not discovered, captured and brought to the bar of justice.

The questions which naturally arise are first, whether the police departments are competent, and if they are then whether there is not an understanding between the law and crime by which the latter is protected?

Any way the matter is viewed the situation has become intolerable and exasperating. What, we may ask will occur when New York and Chicago grow still larger? What will be the citizen's security in the future when organized murder bent on obtaining money at any price becomes bolder and more desperate and turns upon all classes of society?

When we read of the dictation of gangsters and racketeers, how they are beginning to prey upon business, demanding and receiving money for protection, it is enough to make us think of the price we pay for our great cities and consequent great lawlessness. The cities alone though are not affected by this flood of crime. It is now covering in some, if less degree, the whole country and is even reaching to the rural sections heretofore exempt. The bald, uncontroverted statement that our country is the most lawless nation in the world is a fact standing before us in all its bold and fearful significance.

The prime and greatest business of every well disposed citizen is to do what he can to remove this badge of national shame, and to support the principles of law and order.

Manifestly the efficient cause of our disorder and crime is not so much the racketeer as it is a general state of mind that has put the acquisition of money as the leading object of life. This has become an American obsession, coloring and disordering our civilization. When we measure human greatness in terms of dollars, and look upon national and private wealth as the badges of merit and distinction, it is almost to be expected that money will be sought by means foul or fair.

The truth is we have been too busy to care much about the essential things of civilization without which failure is inevitable. We have got to keep ourselves in order before we can expect order from the evil disposed.—Commercial Appeal.

and
Good Dessert

Doctors often advise that Ice Cream be a part of the daily diet. It is rich in the essential health-giving vitamins your family needs, digestible, nourishing.....and, as you well know, nothing is quite so delicious.

Mothers, wise in the art of pleasing their families, could add even to that expert medical advice. They know there is luxurious contentment in having Fortune's.... though actually Fortune's All-Cream Ice Cream costs no more than ordinary ice creams—quality considered.

Fortune's All-Cream Ice Cream is made the way the housewife makes her ice cream—of pure cream, no artificial makeshifts. That is why it is rich, pure and wholesome always.

Fortune's is the ideal family dessert, as your own doctor will tell you. Serve it tonight for dinner. Your neighborhood Fortune dealer has a wide variety of flavors to please every taste, and especially good is Fortune's Old-Fashioned French Custard, and at just the regular price. Youn won't want to miss it.

SIKESTON STANDARD

C. L. BLANTON, EDITOR

ISSUED TUESDAY AND FRIDAY AT SIKESTON, MISSOURI

Entered at the Postoffice at Sikeston, Scott County, Missouri, as second-class mail matter, according to act of Congress.

Rates:
Reading notices, per line.....10c
Bank statements $10.00
Probate notices, minimum ....$ 5.00
Yearly subscription in Scott and the adjoining counties $1.50
Yearly subscription elsewhere in the United States $2.00

The Tuesday edition of The Standard carried an editorial paragraph criticising Dr. O'Bannon, Health Officer of New Madrid County for his failure, or refusal, to give first aid to two young ladies and a boy who were injured in an auto accident and carried to him for treatment The information as printed was given to the editor by Wade Tucker, a former sheriff of that county, and was printed as facts. Wednesday, Dr. O'Bannon called at The Standard office and stated the paragraph had placed him in a bad light and he felt hurt about it. He informs us that the injured folks were brought to his residence, and not his office, that they were plainly hospital cases, and he asked County Clerk Denton to act on behalf of the county court and get them to a hospital at once, which Clerk Denton did, and with Wade Tucker hurried them to the hospital at Sikeston. The Standard editor assisted in carrying the young women to the ward, where they were given immediate attention by the nurses and the surgeon. It was then that Mr. Tucker informed us Dr O'Bannon had refused to give them aid. Dr. O'Bannon stated he had no hospital facilities and was not prepared to give them attention. This is all printed in order that the readers of The Standard can understand the situation and form their own opinion. We were not present a New Madrid, but know the girls were in a pitiful condition when they reached the Emergency Hospital.

It looks a great deal like the country is evoluting back to the cave man state. Savage strength and savage might rules in gangland in the cities and in the rural districts petty thieves, murder and abductions are common. What we need most in the United States is prompt trial for all offenders and force the culprits to serve the full term. In England and Canada offenses are tried at once and if the prisoner is not prepared with his defense, it is his bad luck, for the trial proceeds. In this country if the offender has money, he can procure delays on one excuse or another until witnesses move away or die of old age. Every day the papers are full of murders, abductions, liquor offenders, and the like. We need fewer laws, then see they are enforced promptly.

The merchants and tradesmen of Sikeston, like those in other country cities, are desirous of stimulating business, reach out and try to bring in more. With this wish and desire, the merchants have decided to put on the first Dollar Day, or Sales Day, Saturday, October 25, with The Sikeston Herald printing the first lot of 5000 8-page posters carrying advertising for none but home merchants. These posters, or papers, will be printed, folded and mailed from The Herald office, the merchants to pay 40 cents per inch for the advertising space. This rate will barely pay cost and postage and both The Herald and The Standard expect to print two such sets of posters each, before the Holidays, being two weeks apart The Standard will send out the second lot calling for Dollar Day for Saturday, November 1. The merchants, tradesmen and professions generally are urged to back these publications in their efforts to stimulate trade and bring in new customers.

A man who settles his account with a postal card sent out through a bankrupt court, is in a very poor position to criticise the financial affairs of others. This should be remembered by candidates who seek favors from the people.

Editorial Recognition

Some years ago, the Hon. James A. Reed brought a shower of recognition upon the head of the editorial department of this publication. A little later, Billy Sunday, the chair smashing sawdust trail superintendent took us to a cleaning, which included our possibilities of ever reaching the Pearly Gates, and qualified us as assistant operator of a smoke shovel in Hades. It was advertising

Having editorial paragraphs reproduced in the Kanass City Times and other metropolitan papers gives us an occasional thrill, and only two weeks ago old Minute Man Henderson disturbed the even flow of static from KWKH by rawhiding the editor.

Tish, Tish and a pooh pooh.

We recall a so-called minister of the gospel, by name Jeffries, one of the hundred or lesser lights, who threw a few barbs along our primrose path, but such as that is hardly worth an additional pooh, not to mention a tish.

Comes now the Lions International organization with the latest bit of free publicity for The Sikeston Standard. An editorial written some weeks ago reviewed the economic situation in and near Sikeston. This week that editorial is in the hands of 2269 Lions Clubs with a request from H. A. Hill, assistant secretary Lions International, to have editors in those 2269 cities reproduce similar business stimulators in their editorial columns.

Seriously, it is the purpose of Lions Clubs everywhere to stimulate better business conditions during this "Business Confidence Week", and we feel gratified in having had even a slight bit to do with the restoration of confidence in business, or rather with the program of Lions International, dedicated to that purpose.

The sudden death of George R. Harper, Tuesday, from heart disease took from us one of the most genial and kind hearted gentlemen that we have ever known. He was close on to his allotted years of three score and ten when the summons came, and no man in the community was better fitted to meet his maker than was this kindly gentleman. Ever ready to help those in distress, a smile and a hearty hand shake, a pleasant word to all. That was Geo. R. Harper, our friend, everybody's friend. While his soul has passed on, his memory will be treasured by acquaintances as long as they live. May the earth lie gently over his remains, may the grass be the greenest, may the flowers be the brightest.

There are a number of towns along the Frisco railroad in this vicinity, and strange as it may seem, all of these towns are Republican, where it isn't safe for a nigger to light. This was demonstrated in Mountain Grove a few days ago, so the Mountain Grove Journal relates: "Two scared-looking negroes, evidently Arkansas cotton hands, disembarked from the train here yesterday morning to walk the rest of the trip home, as their funds were about exhausted. They were hungry and had a little money but were afraid they would not be permitted to even eat here. One of our restaurants served them in the kitchen and they then started their hike."—West Plains Gazette.

Cape-C'ville Tie 0-0

Cape Girardeau, October 11.—The Cape Central High School Indians and a fighting team from Caruthersville battled to a scoreless tie here this afternoon, before a big crowd. The game was a see-saw affair, with neither eleven showing sufficient punch to put over a touchdown.

Farmington Beats Jackson

Farmington, October 11.—Farmington High School defeated Jackson here Friday afternoon, 12 to 0, in the first intersectional game of the season for the locals. Berlin Yates quarterback, figured in both of Farmington's touchdowns, scoring the first on a sweeping end run and executing a 40-yard pass to his brother, Robert, who sprinted across the line for the second.

Farmington has been undefeated as yet, having held both Webster Groves and Crystal City to 7-7 tie scores.

Dexter Is Winner 13-0

Dexter, October 11.—The Dexter Bearcats beat the Doniphan Dons here yesterday afternoon, by a score of 13 to 0.

Held scoreless in the first half, the Bearcats opened up a forward passing attack in the second half that netted two touchdowns. The Dons made a desperate rally in the final period, completing two or three forward passes for good gains, but the effort was shortlived.

Neither team showed any great offensive power.

KONJOLA AGAIN PROVES POWERS OVER AILMENTS

Marathon Dancer And Practical Nurse Finds New Medicine Master Remedy ---Gains Seven Pounds

MISS HAZEL BARKLEY

"For six months I was bothered with a severe pain in my back and legs", said Miss Hazel Barkley, practical nurse and marathon dancer, 416 West Fourth Street, Little Rock. "Indigestion too, was the cause of much discomfort. I lost weight, felt tired and worn out most of the time. I tried several medicines without benefit.

"Finally I decided to try Konjola. It went right to work and relieved the pain in my back and legs. I regained my appetite and slept better at night. I continued the treatment until I took five bottles. I now feel like a different person. I eat heartily without distress. Kidney trouble which caused the pains, is gone. I gained seven pounds in weight. I will always praise Konjola for what it has done for me".

And so it goes, the same glad story whenever Konjola is given a chance to make good. And what this medicine has done for others it will do for you—for everyone.

Konjola is sold in Sikeston at the Derris drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

A FRIDAY HALLOWEEN PARTY

It is a tradition handed down from the Druids, probably, that on Hallowe'en night wicked witches meet together in their various secret haunts to plan out their deeds of darkness. No one is safe from their deeds of darkness. No one is safe from their malice unless he knows how to take measures for his safety. Since Hallowe'en comes on Friday, itself a bad-luck day, we shall have to work all the magic we know to overcome the wiles of the witches and the influence of an unlucky day. The house should be decorated in a weird and spooky way with ghosts, black cats, bats, owls, witches and goblin-head lights. Yellow flowers and autumn leaves will look well with these decorations. In addition we must have plenty of good-luck emblems to break the curse of bad luck. These are branches of mountain ash, horseshoes, wishbones, rabbit feet, four-leaved clovers, and elephants. Invitation:

A wise old owl once said to me,
"It's wise to be light-hearted",
So let's become as wise as he
And on the road get started.
All bad luck that may come to you
Can be turned right about.
If a screech owl cries, the thing to do
Is turn your pocket out.

Games: Pulling Kale—This is an old Scotch game that can be modified for indoors. In the original game the ones seeking to know the future went into the garden and with eyes closed pulled a stalk. If earth stuck to the roots, it was a sign of good fortune. If the stem was straight or crooked, it indicated the figure of one's future husband or wife, and the disposition was shown by the taste of the heart of the stalk. Sticks to represent kale, with favors or funny fortunes attached to the ends, can be buried in a large box of sawdust.

Burning Nuts: The nuts are named and placed near each other in the fire. If they burn peacably together, the course of love will run smoothly. If they pop apart, it indicates that the pair will be separated.

Apple Seed: Name two apple seeds and stick them on the cheeks. The one dropping off first indicates that he will be unfaithful.

Peelings: Peel an apple without breaking the peeling, and throw it over the left shoulder. It will form the initial of the future spouse.

Clue of Thread: Throw a ball of wool out of the window, holding on to the loose end. Rewind it on a reel. The name of the future husband will be found attached to the other end.

Our new Stunt Initiation Party is excellent for Hallowe'en and is also a splendid one for club, college and school initiation parties.—Goodhousekeeping

"That Interesting Store"

Furniture—Radio—Undertaking

Our 33rd Year in Charleston

Take it from us, Mrs. Housekeeper, that the cost of furniture at present date is low—and when we say LOW we mean L-O-W. That fact being established, it is well to also understand it IS NOT going lower. Bankrupt factories have fallen into the hands of alert jobbers, strong financially, and when these stocks are finally disposed of it, it is safe to say no factory will saw up more patterns than they have already sold. There has not been a more opportune time in years to replenish your stock of home furnishings than right now. We are not acquainted with the policies of other merchants when prices decline but at this store you may rely on getting a hundred cents in value for each of your dollars.

The firm is especially proud of a certain walnut dining suite which is featured in the front window this week at $135.00 on weekly or monthly payments. This suite is of very pretty grain walnut, rather plain in appearance, easy to keep dust free and out of the ordinary run of sets at that figure. It is of the Queen Anne type and if you have been keeping your eyes on magazines lately, you have seen a good many of that period in advertising pages. The appearance of one's dining room has a good deal to do with the social estimate placed on the host by guests of the table.

Simmons Deep Sleep mattresses are real sleep producers and the price is only $23.00, an amount you have often paid perhaps for a mediocre felt mattress which is not anywhere near a Deep Sleep for comfort. We sell and deliver Deep Sleeps on a strict guarantee of satisfaction or money back.

An outstanding bargain in our used department is a pretty green enamel Moore's Range, which has not been used long. This stove is in A1 condition and guaranteed the same as if it was brand new. Moore's stoves are high grade you know. Look this one over. President Hoover is said to be sympathetic toward the suggestion that the Government purchase land outright in the Jadwin Floodway of Missouri instead of seeking to establish just value for flowage rights. What a pity his sympathies were not aroused a year and a half ago when he was pleaded with from many angles to use his executive powers in saving real estate values and business interests in Mississippi County from destruction at the hands of Jadwin. A revision of plans was denied us at that time by the President and business confusion regarding the future of our county has been prevalent ever since. If the "immediate purchase" plan by Congressmen Reid and Short is not mere political "applesauce", land owners in the doomed section may yet be saved. That will be sufficient ground for celebration if it comes to pass—even if town property values and trade fields this side of the setback levee are badly wrecked.

SMART FALL ACCESSORIES ADD VERVE AND SPARKLE TO THE COSTUME

It is impossible to consider the fall outfit as a unit without considering the jewelry that is designed to accompany it. This season it is more beautiful than ever. Beautiful in design and in color.

The new necklaces with tear drop pendants—often in the form of flowers, are lovely. Some are of simulated rubies—very charming ones from Paris have rubies set with tiny brilliants creating a novel and stunning effect. Facetted stones combined with flexible pendants are among the smartest novelties in costume jewelry introduced for fall.

One of the most effective of the new "gadgets" is a long jeweled shoulder strap for an evening frock. The strap ends in a large brooch and is unusually lovely. For jewelry of the informal type black and white combinations are well to the fore following the vogue for this color combination in fall costume. Necklaces and bracelets of beads simulating mother-of-pearl are set on gold links. Diamond-cut simulated crystals are shown in chokers of 18 to 20 inch length. These same crystals are shown in amusing necklaces that simulate Eton collars with cuff bracelets styled like little ruffles.

Black or Blue Glazed Kid

A novel type of glove to be worn with evening frocks is short—one button length and fits closely at the wrist. It may be had in black or blue glazed kid. The usual gloves of white glace kid vary in length but preserve a simplicity of style.

Gloves for daytime wear are shown in many black and white effects with gauntlet cuffs and detail of buttons or lacing. Among the novelties are gloves of white pigskin—extremely smart and "tailored" looking.

Envelope Bags of Suede

Handbags for fall give special importance to the envelope and pouch types. They are practical and combine with their practicability the important attribute of chic. Notable are envelope bags of suede or antelope—a logical accompaniment of the popular suede and antelope shoes so outstanding for fall. Calf and morocco bags with trimmings of reptile in bands or applied motifs are also numbered among fashion's favorites. Many of the pouch bags have stunning mountings of shell, others have effective clasps of crystal and colored stones. Beautiful details of lining and inner fittings make the autumn handbags among the lovliest noted in many seasons.

The Importance of Color

Because of the importance of black many of the smartest new hand bags for fall are shown in this color. Others are in blue—in all the shades fashion approves. Brown is strongly represented in a variety of shades that range from deep purpleish brown to light biege. Green comes next in importance, with red as a close runner-up for favor. A characteristic of fall is that the complete ensemble is not always carried out in one color, but is made piquant by color contrast. The hand bag plays an important part in carrying out this idea.

SUITABILITY TO THE COSTUME AND OCCASION MARKS THE SMART FALL APPAREL

Autumn fashions arrive, setting the keynote of the coming season—anticipating the mode and introducing those fascinating new details of line and silhouette that mean so much to the woman who studies each changing phase of style. Little change is noted in the silhouette—it is trim and feminine, softened in a variety of ways by clever neckline treatment and sleeve elaboration. An outstanding difference lies in the bloused back. The waist is fitted, the line is molded at the hips to a point just above the knees where it breaks, falling free to the hem line.

Dull Finished Weaves

The approved fabrics for daytime have a tendency toward the dull finished weaves. Suede cloth, crepe finished broadcloth, novelty jersey, erect pile velvet, Canton and spiral crepe are outstanding favorites for the afternoon frock. The predominance of black brings smart tailoerd frocks of fine woolens or Canton crepe. Many of these have the peplum as a style detail, Others use the bolero in real or simulated versions. Many of the black frocks have a color contrast in white or aquamarine, many have lingerie details of lace or linen.

The Grecian Influence

The more formal mode is touched at every point by the Grecian influence. A draped line calls for supple fabrics such as delustered satin, crepe roma or lame. The vogue for black and white leaves its imprint on frocks of this type. Many dinner gowns are shown in striking combinations of these colors. Dinner gowns with sleeves that fit closely to the elbow, thence breaking into unusual width in an "angel" sleeve effect, are noted among the new fashions. The three-quarter or elbow length sleeve continues to occupy a prominent place in frocks for fall with a continuance of the capelet bertha in gowns of the more formal type.

Further trimming touches are buttons, shirrings, gores, pressed godets and tucks. Bows, belts, symmetrical necklines and skirt treatments are details. The cowl or draped neckline is a favorite. Colors smart for autumn frocks are browns ranging from mauve tones to rosy biege. Green in rich or high deep tones. Rich vibrant reds and some light henna.

The Fall Coats

Fall coats are so varied in type that one may find a style for practically every occasion. Indeed so inclusive is the mode that the range of selectivity is broadened beyond that of any other season. Nearly all of the more formal versions are fitted. The sports types are the exception—many of them flaring from the shoulder.

Among the smartest fabrics for formal and semi-formal coats are monotone and two-tone tweeds, multo-colored nubbed tweeds and broadcloths. The truly formal type is often of velvet—rich and lustrous.

The Use of Many Furs

While luxurious fur trimming is noted on a number of fall coats the mode seems to tend more strongly to a conservative use of fur as trimming. The thin standing collars and rever fronts of such short haired furs as Persian lamb are more conspicuous.

The bloused back and bolero treatment are favored details with intricate seaming playing a prominent role in creating the fitted silhouette. Coats are belted, or not, with equal chic. Wide traight cuffs reaching above the elbow or gauntlet cuffs of such furs as krimmer; spiral cuffs of flat furt are details. The favored colors are black, brown, green, rich red and henna.

Suits are of outstanding importance for fall—nearly all with coats so long that only a bit of the skirt shows beneath the coat. The tendency is for the coat to be accompanied by a frock rather than the separate skirt and blouse mode with which we have become familiar. The suits are lavishly trimmed with fur—following in a general way the same fashion detail shown on separate coats.

For sports wear knitted suits and tweed suits are extremely good. Many woolen frocks with coats are a feature of autumn sports fashions.

Fur Handled Like Fabrics

Each year furs are handled with greater skill and artistry so that the rich pelts take on the appearance of fabrics, intricately worked. The fur coats are slender and graceful in line with bloused backs, tucks and tailored effects. Two outstanding types are approved—the one with huge upstanding collar and great sleeve elaboration and the tailored sports coat. In coats of the more "dressy" type caracul is outstanding with unshaved lamb, Persian lamb, mink, moire pony and ermine also in favor. Coats of the sports type are featured in lapin, baby panther, and muskrat, worked in novel effects.

Over and over again the idea of suitability in the autumn wardrobe is stressed. This means that one coat will not do for a variety of occasions. It must be suitable to the frock which it accompanies. For each outfit one must choose the correct accessories. Not only does this mean corect in color, but in type. For instance, the elaborate afternoon costume calls for handbags, gloves and shoes that have elaboration in the same degree. The sports outfits demand accessories that are simple and smart.

Furs for All Occasions

The woman who makes a study of fashion will find it almost necessary to have more than one fur coat in her autumn outfit. The styles this year are so varied that she will find one provided for nearly all occasions. For sports the simple swagger types of lapin, panther, muskrat, and beaver. For dress occasions, coats of Persian lamb, mink, ermine and combinations of these pelts.

This idea of suitability extends to the selection of fabrics. The afternoon frock is rich and lustrous, in fabric or has a dull elegance. The sports frock of tweed, jersey or simple crepe and the evening frock of delustered satin, crepe romaine or rish brocades.

In every field of modern apparel we find this cry for suitability. Indeed, it forms the keynote of the smart autumn outfits.

Dignity ni Autumn Fashions

One of the outstanding characteristics of the fall fashion parade is that the modes shown are subtly elegant and dignified. The mode introduced last season has been developed and refined—an atmosphere of poised femininity characterizes the whole. This is indeed a season of distinction in dress.

LAWYER BROUGHT BACK TO FACE CHECK CHARGE

St. Louis, October 13.—Meredith Sellards, 21, an attorney, who went to Dallas, Texas, several weeks ago, while being held under bond here on charges of passing worthless checks, was returned to St. Louis yesterday by Detective Sergeants McKenna and Collard.

Sellards' $9000 bond was signed by Anton Schmidt and William Dietrich, professional bondsmen. The arrest of Sellards in Dallas was brought about after the bondsmen had circulated a description of him and his machine.

Six warrants charging passing worthless checks were issued against Sellards after Miss Gertrude Kelly, convicted check passer, signed a statement implicating Sellards.

For the woman who sews well and has time, it is often an economy to make wash suits for small boys under six. A careful selection of a trouser pattern is essential. The Bureau of Home Economics has some helpful suggestions on this point in Leaflet 52-L. Suits for the Small Boy.

After all the crops have been removed from the truck garden, it is a good plan to remove all vines, dead plants, and other trash and sow the ground to rye or some other green crop. This will prevent the earth from washing, and the green material will improve the physical condition of the soil. If the garden is not sown to some crop, and if the soil is not subject to washing, plow or spade it and let the ground lie rough through the winter. This practice permits frost to kill insects as well as to lighten the soil by alternate freezing and thawing. Many gardeners plow the ground and apply coarse manure.

A CRIPPLED TEAM TO INVADE CHAFFEE

A crippled Bulldog team will take the field against Chaffee on the Red Devil's own grid Friday night. Bennett, contender for all-Southeast Missouri backfiled honors this season will not start. A torn cartilage suffered the day before the Charleston encounter here last Friday is still bothersome and will keep the key-man of the Sikeston offense benched.

Humphreys has been confined to his bed this week with malaria and cold and will not be in condition to play, and Fitzgerald suffered a cracked rib during scrimmage, placing this minature backfield ace on the sidelines. Fox will probably be on the bench at the start, and possibly during the game. Water on the knee stiffened the join and another of Cunningham's mainstays was placed on the willing but waiting list.

The reserves and Bulldog linesmen have been engaged in a solid week of scrimmage and signal work in an effort to uncork some kind of offensive play against the Red Devils on their home grounds. The line is still intact as far as injuries are concerned, but whether Cunningham and his assistants, Miller and Stallings can uncover enough backfield material to outsmart the Chaffee crew still remains to be seen. The odds favor the home team.

A large delegation of Sikeston rooters, business men and friends of the Bulldogs have expressed a desire to drive to Chaffee Friday night to witness the first performance of the locals under the glare of arc lights. It will mark the first appearance of any Bulldog football team in night football play and a record crowd is expected at Chaffee.
